Northern Alberta Buys $7,355,950 in Bonds, 57.6 Per Cent of Quota

Reaching 57.6 per cent of its $12,769,000 quota in the Fourth Victory Loan, Northern Alberta is 1.5 per cent ahead of the general average of sales in the province at the close of business on the 10th day of the campaign, it was announced Friday at loan headquarters. Sales during the 10-day period amounted to $7,355,950 with 17,994 subscribers participating. Province wide sales in the 10 days amounted to $18,498,450, or 56.1 per cent of the $33,000,000 objective set for Alberta.

Edmonton reached 59.8 per cent of its $8,805,000 quota in the Fourth Victory Loan at the close of business on Thursday, as 2,115 persons—the largest number of subscribers in an one day since the start of the campaign—invested $371,750 in support of the nations' war effort. Total subscriptions to date amounted to $5,268,950, which is an increase of $1,008,050 over the total at the end of the tenth day of the Third Victory Loan.

The number of subscribers to date is 8,342, which is 2,914 greater than in the last campaign. In the general sales and payroll savings section the purchases amount to $2,332,250 of the $4,600,000 quota, or 50.7 per cent.

We swung out into the Channel again, and the moonlight danced impudently on the most important body of water in the world, and you wondered why everything appeared so peaceful. By now, through familiarity, my glass enclosure seemed safe and secure, and I reached out and punched the heavy glass and leaned forward, finally lying down so that I was looking directly ahead and downward, watching the tiny white-caps born of a sudden breeze dance merrily on the surface. It was good to know that we were flashing at almost 300 miles an hour across the English Channel toward Churchill's island on a magic carpet from my own country. The longer you live abroad, the more American you get and the prouder you get of American institutions and of American industry which could produce something like this Douglas Boston, which kept singing evenly, serenely, as though to say, "Don't worry—I won't let you down."

"Is that lighthouse flashing?" I called through the intercom.

"No lighthouses out here," the pilot laughed. "This is the Channel."

I looked again, and still thought I saw a light. The clouds, tired of flirting with the moon, had come low now to

Greatest Air Onslaught Ever Staged in Support Of Troops Batters Axis

U.S. Takes Air Base Near Kiska

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—United States forces have established an air base on Amchitka Island, only 63 nautical miles from Japanese-held Kiska Island in the western Aleutians, the Navy department announced today.

The island is 149 nautical miles nearer Kiska than the previously westernmost point of advance in the Andreanof Islands.

Establishment of the Amchitka base, accomplished in late January, cut the flying time to Kiska, for a bombing plane averaging 300 miles an hour to 12 minutes. This has made possible the heavy daily raids carried out when weather permitted.

U.S. Planes Raid Italian Harbor

CAIRO, May 7.—(AP)—United States heavy bombers raided the harbor of Reggio Di Calabria on the toe of the Italian boot in daylight yesterday and scored hits on two ships on the harbor, a British headquarters communique said today.

The daylight attack by American bombers followed a raid the previous night by heavy bombers of the R.A.F. during which bomb bursts were observed in the target area and at least one fire was started, the communique said.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, May 7.—(BUP)—Delayed reports revealed today that Allied planes dropped 1,250,000 pounds of bombs on Axis targets yesterday, sank 25 ships and destroyed 25 planes in the biggest day of aerial activity during the North African campaign.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, May 7.—The greatest aerial onslaught in support of ground troops ever staged — four planes every minute for nine solid hours—blasted the narrow, four-mile front yesterday and enabled the British First Army to smash through Massicault and roll across the flat approaches to Tunis.

A total of 2,500 sorties, largest number ever flown in the African theatre, darkened the skies over the narrow front that ranged from 1,000 yards to three miles in depth. There was hardly a yard of ground in that area on which Allied bombs didn't crash.

A joint statement by the Royal Air Force and United States Army Air Force — whose communiques usually are models of restraint and understatement—said:

GREATEST AIR EFFORT

Axis Forces Pinned Back Against Tunisian Beaches By Lightning-Like Drives

FLASH

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA, May 7.—(AP)—The capture of both Tunis and Bizerte was announced officially tonight.

By VIRGIL PINKLEY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, May 7.—American forces smashed into the outskirts of Bizerte and the British First Army captured the suburbs of Tunis today in lightning thrusts that pinned the Axis back against the beaches of Tunisia.

Despite fierce German resistance, the end of big-scale fighting in North Africa appeared imminent. A tremendous weight of Allied air and land power converged on the beaten enemy who was being driven back toward a "Dunkirk" on the beaches.

The 2nd U.S. Corps in the north seized Ferryville, an important part of the Bizerte naval base installations, battled forward nine miles to the suburbs of the city of Bizerte itself.

British Seize Town of Le Bardo

British First Army tanks crashed a dozen miles across the rolling plains to seize the town of Le Bardo, site of the palace of the Bey of Tunis only a mile and a half from the capital, and the race track, only four miles from the heart of the city.

Heavy fighting raged in the outskirts of Tunis early this afternoon.

Overhead, a mighty Allied air armada again gave the ground offensive powerful support, blasting a path through the remnants of Axis armored units and spreading death and destruction among clogged enemy transport columns which apparently were trying to fall back for a last stand in the hills of Cap Bon, east of Tunis.

The town of Ferryville, on the southwest corner of Lake Bizerte, fell to an American armored reconnaissance unit at 12:55 p.m. today.

Axis Front in Tunisia Cut in Two

The Americans immediately swung on to Bizerte, which was also under attack by American and French from the coastal sector north of Lake Achkel. The outskirts of the town were penetrated and captured a short time later.

The Axis front in Tunisia was cut in two, with Bizerte isolated from Tunis and enemy transport columns were falling back before Allied infantry and were being pounded furiously from the air.

Many prisoners were taken by the Allied forces as they seized the race track at Tunis—only four miles from the heart of the city—cut up isolated enemy rear guards and pinned the remnants of a once-powerful Axis army back against the beaches of Tunis and Bizerte. The victory came just one day less than six months after the Allies invaded North Africa.

"Dunkirk Battle" Seen Imminent

A "Dunkirk battle" on the beaches of Tunisia appeared imminent.

The British First Army tank advance started at 8:30 a.m. today on the heights near St. Cyprien, ten miles from Tunis, and carried to the capital outskirts by noon.

Alexander's Stirring Message to His Troops

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—The text of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's order of the day signalizing the start of the current offensive in Tunisia, as broadcast from Algiers:

"Soldiers of the Allies:

"Two months ago when the Germans and Italians were attacking us I told you that if you held fast final victory was assured us.

"You did your duty and now you are about to reap its full reward.

"You have reached the last phase of this campaign. We have regrouped our victorious armies and are going to drive the enemy into the sea.

"We have got them just where we want them—with their backs to the wall.

"That final battle will be fierce, bitter and long, and will demand all the skill, strength and endurance of each of us.

"But you have proved yourselves masters of the battlefield, and therefore you will win this last great battle which will give us the whole of North Africa.

"The eyes of the world are on you and the hopes of those at home.

"Forward then to victory!"

Soviet Troops Continue Drive On Novorossisk

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—Russian troops driving on Novorossisk in the Caucasus repulsed nine furious German counter-attacks today and captured several additional important heights, Moscow announced tonight in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

MOSCOW, May 7.—The Red army, backed by a powerful air fleet and massed artillery, pushed steadily southwestward through the Caucasian mountains toward Novorossisk today, cutting a vital highway and occupying a chain of hills.

Meantime, fast twin-engined Allied and Soviet bombers of the Red Air Force destroyed or damaged 470 enemy aircraft in mass daylight raids on German airfields elsewhere in occupied Russia.

The Germans threw large forces of reserves, tanks and aircraft into five bitter counter-attacks 15 miles northeast of Novorossisk yesterday, but failed to arrest the Soviet advance and front dispatches said the Russian threat to the big Black Sea naval base was growing hourly.

In one sector alone, the Thursday midnight communique said, the Germans lost 1,500 dead, six

Victory Loan Sales Boosted To $630,843,600

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP)—Bolstered by a $15,000,000 subscription from the Unemployment Insurance Commission of Canada, Thursday's subscriptions to the $1,100,000,000 Fourth Victory loan totalled $66,737,100, raising total subscriptions in the first 10 working days of the three-week drive to $630,843,600.

This announcement was made by national war finance committee headquarters, which listed the corresponding 10-day total for last autumn's Third Victory loan at $509,980,000. But in the last loan the objective was only $750,000,000.

Yesterday's subscriptions of $66,737,100 compared with $51,721,700 on the same day of the Third Victory loan drive.

Lethbridge, Alta., the first western city to exceed its objective, went "over the top" yesterday, both in respect to general canvass and total quota. The canvass result tanks destroyed and 15 guns, 22 machine guns, 13 trench and six supply dumps captured.

The main Soviet advance was through a mountain pass running southwestward from Neberjaiskaya, 10 miles northeast of Novorossisk, captured with 10 other towns in the initial Soviet breakthrough.

The Germans were fighting desperately as they fell back toward Novorossisk, but front dispatches said Red air force fighters and bombers were paralyzing the enemy defence with mass raids.

Once they reach Novorossisk, the Germans presumably will have no choice except to attempt a Dunkirk-like evacuation to the Crimea. Novorossisk already is threatened from the south by Russian troops that thrust into the outskirts several months ago.

IMMINENT DANGER

Thus the enemy's Taman peninsula bridgehead, which he presumably had hoped to retain as a springboard for an offensive toward the Maikop oil field, appeared in imminent danger of complete annihilation.

(The Vichy radio reported as from Berlin that the German high command plans to "shorten" the line west of Krymskaya further because of an imminent new Soviet offensive.

(A German broadcast reported that Soviet attacks against the German bridgehead were repulsed and said 21 out of 30 attacking tanks were destroyed in one sector. Eighteen Soviet boats crammed with troops were sunk in the Kuban river before reaching midstream, the broadcast said, and 11 Soviet ferryboats were destroyed by German bombers in the Sea of Azov.)

British Capture Suburbs Of Tunis, American Forces Enter Outskirts of Bizerte

all-out blows that collapsed the main Axis hill defences and brought Tunis as well as Bizerte within artillery range.

The Americans and French in the north captured another 1,000 prisoners, took four important hill features, hammered at the road junction of Ferryville after mopping up a bitter-end German garrison on a nearby hill. They also seized Djebel Zarour south of Lake Bizerte, and cleared the hills southwest of the vital Chouigui Pass only six miles northwest of Tebourba, which is now threatened from three sides. The fall of Tebourba appeared imminent.

The British First Army had pushed an overwhelming weight of armor through the captured town of Massicault on the central plains and surged on eastward toward St. Cyprien to within easy artillery range of Tunis, which was no longer protected by any formidable natural barrier.

Both Imperials and Americans were closing in on the junction of Tebourba from which the enemy apparently was withdrawing.

ORDERS ALL-OUT DRIVE

Alexander's orders were for all-out offensives that would give the enemy no opportunity to catch his breath and drive him back to a "Dunkirk" on the Mediterranean beaches.

"We have reached the final phase," he told the 18th Army Group. "The world's eyes are on you. Forward to victory."

Alexander's order of the day left no doubt that the Germans were being smashed back to the Tunis beaches, encircled and cut up and that the enemy front might soon be split by the isolation of Bizerte. American troops were hammering wedges into the enemy lines south of the naval base in an effort to cut communications but the Axis still had one road from Bizerte to Tunis.

"YOU WILL WIN"

"We have got them just where we want them—with their backs to the wall," Alexander's order said. "This final battle will be fierce . . . but you will win . . . the whole of North Africa."

Bizerte was almost cut off from Tunis and the entire Axis mountain front had fallen apart under infantry and artillery attacks and after the greatest aerial attack ever hurled against enemy lines had literally blasted a four-mile-wide path through the hills with more than 2,000 sorties in a few hours.

The enemy suffered tremendous losses on land, while Allied planes ranging northward as far as Italy sank a destroyer and 11 small ships, destroyed 40 enemy planes and hit a second destroyer as well as many other vessels. The concentrated aerial attacks stopped virtually all enemy reinforcements and supplies to Tunisia.

CUTTING UP ENEMY

American infantry and armor was smashing the enemy defences of Bizerte into small isolated areas as the Imperials fanned out on the plain before Tunis from heights only two or three miles west of St. Cyprien.

The American and French columns on the north coast pushed forward over easier ground on the north side of Lake Achkel and dug in within less than nine miles of the big naval base. South of Lake Achkel they were thrusting close to the outskirts of Ferryville.

Still farther south, in sweeps against the enemy lines southeast of Mateur, they were reported threatening to trap large enemy rear-guard units in the Tebourba hills and had thrown out a spearhead toward Djerdeida, which lies east of Tebourba and only 13 miles from Tunis.

NAZI ADMISSIONS

(The German communique today acknowledged that superior Allied infantry, tank and air formations had achieved a deep penetration in Tunisia. The Italian communique said that Reggio Di Calabria, Trapani, Marsala and the island of Favignana had been bombed by Allied four-motored planes.)

Many Axis prisoners were taken but no count had yet been made and mopping up operations still were in progress at many points.

The Americans striking southeast from Mateur cleared the hills four miles south of Chouigui despite strong resistance. They pressed on toward Tebourba. Front dispatches said the enemy withdrawals were mostly in the direction of Tunis, indicating the Germans planned to make a "Bataan stand" on Cap Bon peninsula east of Tunis.

For more than 36 hours the Allied double-headed offensive had been gaining momentum and the Axis appeared to be too badly beaten to hold much hope of stopping it short of Cap Bon.

The main attack on Thursday was on a 10-mile front where the British First army broke through the last mountain barriers east of Medjez-El-Bab and flooded out on the rolling plain, pushing beyond Massicault in a sudden lightning thrust.

The break through was made possible by an all-out Allied aerial assault that sometimes brought infantry leaping out of foxholes to cheer and shout at the bombers sweeping close together over the enemy positions and unloading mighty cargoes that shook the hills.

For nine consecutive hours there were four planes over the breakthrough sector every minute on Thursday—something never before seen in warfare of this nature.

The aerial offensive made possible by the brilliant work of Britain's Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder and his American deputy, Lt.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, was followed by a drive to the Tunis plain which captured Djebel Perndj, four miles southwest of Massicault.

Victory Loan Makes Progress North Alberta

loan is meeting with marked support and subscriptions at the end of the 10-days period were $1,896,550 ahead of the Third Victory Loan campaign at the same date. The number of subscribers to the present loan is 9,652, compared with 5,100 in the last loan, an increase of 4,552. Sales in rural Northern Alberta in the Fourth Victory Loan totalled $2,087,000 compared with $990,450 in the last loan.

NORTH SETTLEMENTS

Canvass of northern mining settlements has now started and the first return from Yellowknife was telegraphed to headquarters Friday morning. In the two days since the campaign started there 47 sales, totalling $8,150, have been made, and workers in the district are confident that the quota set will be greatly surpassed. The canvass at the Thompson-Lundmark, Eldorado and Negus mines have not been completed.

Word received from Fort McMurray Friday reported an additional $4,150 had been received which was not included in the regular tabulation. This would bring the subscriptions for this district to $17,750 well over 50 per cent of the district's $30,000 quota.

Owing to difficulties of transportation the campaign at Fort Norman did not get underway until Monday, but workers there reported that the quota for the district would be passed by a considerable margin.

BOYS BUY BONDS

At Leduc four school boys purchased $50 bonds, paying cash for them with savings effected through casual work during the winter months. The boys set out at the beginning of the winter to save their money for investment in the Fourth Victory Loan.

Another Leduc boy, who has just left school to take a job in the town, invested $100 of savings in the loan, while a fourth boy who left school to join the active service this week is buying a bond out of his army pay.

DOUBLE CONTRIBUTION

A British school boy guest in Edmonton who reached the enlistment age this week and immediately joined the armed forces made a double contribution to the nation's war effort. He joined the forces, and then went to loan headquarters here to purchase a Victory Bond with savings accumulated through doing odd jobs in his neighborhood.

Investment was made by the Beverage Dispensers' Union, No. 579 of $200, all the available reserve funds of the union. Alex Young, secretary of the union, making the investment said "this is our membership's answer to the propaganda 'no beer no bonds'."

The Great Western Garment Workers Co. employees have reached their quota on the pay roll savings division, and the canvass is not finished. The Edmonton Paint and Glass Co. workers have passed their quota by 25 per cent and are going strong, while British American Oil Co. employees are past the quota set.

Greatest Air Blows of War Hit at Enemy

Coningham in co-operation with the advance of the First Army along the Medjez-Tunis road south of the Medjerda River."

Another North African record was set by Allied planes which ranged out across the Mediterranean to slash at Axis communications. A total of 27 ships were hit, 12 of them definitely sunk and several others left in sinking condition. The toll included one Axis destroyer sunk and another destroyer set afire.

Twenty enemy planes were shot down in battle and over Axis airfields and another three were downed over the Mediterranean. The Allies lost 10 aircraft.

APPLAUDED BY TROOPS

An R.A.F. officr reported that British infantry, after watching the vast swarm of Allied planes, ran over to where he was standing, shook his hand and said: "By God, what a show!"

Flying Fortresses, Mitchells, Marauders, bomb-carrying Lightnings and P-40 Warhaws and 11 Axis vessels and damaged many more in Sicilian waters. A number of the ships were loaded with troops."

Evidently the ships were moving or preparing to sail in the direction of Tunis, but official confirmation was lacking.

It was one of the greatest aerial operations of the war, comparable in organization and size to the 1,000-bomber raid on Cologne nearly a year ago.

The offensive coincided with a headquarters announcement that the Allied air forces sank 62 ships and excluding attacks by the Desert Air Force, dropped 18,526,724 pounds of bombs on enemy positions and shipping between Nov. 8 and May 2. Altogether 1,655 enemy aircraft were destroyed in aerial combat or by anti-aircraft guns, while Allied losses totalled 631 aircraft.

USED EVERY PLANE

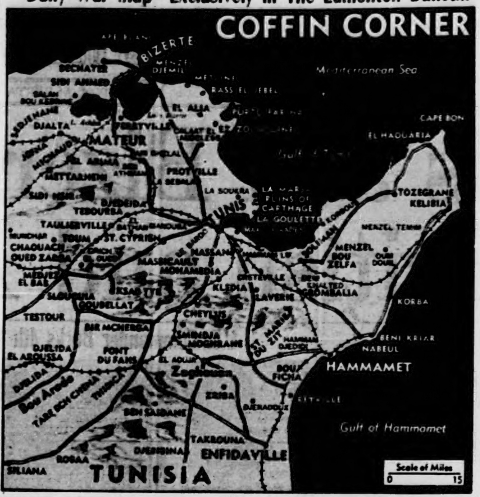
Clearing skies yesterday enabled air commanders to throw every plane in their arsenal against the enemy coincidental with the opening of general land offensives against Bizerte and Tunis.

A special air force communique last night said the blasting of the path constituted the most concentrated air attack of the war."

Bombers and fighter-bombers laid down a moving curtain of explosives. As the line of bursting bombs crept deeper into enemy territory, First army troops advanced cautiously to avoid splinters and shrapnel from their own bombs, as well as from shells laid down by a 400-gun British artillery barrage.

Fighters poured a constant stream of lead into enemy troops, gun positions, transport concentrations and supply dumps. Hardly an enemy plane was encountered.

Daily War Map—Exclusively in The Edmonton Bulletin



Driven into a corner with their backs to the sea, Axis forces in Tunisia are making their last stand in the hills and on the plains that lead to Tunis and Bizerte. Allied forces attacking from Enfidaville, Bou Arada, Medjez el Bab and Sedjenane are making this truly a "coffin corner" for the Axis.

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, May 7.—(AP)—The Chinese command announced yesterday, only a short while after the military spokesman had warned that the eenmy was about to "make an important move," that the Japanese had started a new offensive against the Chinese "rice bowl" in North Hunan and South Hupeh provinces with 7,000 to 8,000 troops and heavy air support.

The enemy was declared thrown back in the initial phase of this southward thrust below the Yangtze, which presumably was intended to knock out China's principal food crop, but fierce and inconclusive fighting was continuing in his subsequent attacks.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 7.—Japanese submarines trying to blockade Australia sank five freighters in 13 days for a record blow at Allied shipping in this war zone, but failed to dent the flow of supplies from America, a communique said today.

The communique reported Allied land and air successes. Allied troops took Bobduri village, threatening to cut off considerable enemy forces south of Salamaua in New Guinea, and destroyed nine Japanese planes in a raid on a base in the Aroe Islands.

The sea losses were first fruits of the Jap submarine campaign against the Allied lifelines announced May 1. Victims were a medium-sized U.S. freighter making her maiden voyage, one large and two small Australian merchantmen, and a small Norwegian vessel. Most of the crews were saved.

stands at $1,065,000 or 107 per cent, and all purchases total $1,360,000 or 110 per cent of over-all quota.

"A report from the Lethbridge committee said these returns were the result of outstanding organization and hard work day and night by citizen-salesmen and payroll savings workers", loan headquarters said. "Their efforts to date add up to the fact that sales were made to every fourth man, woman or child in the community."

Corporate "special names" subscriptions yesterday included: T. Eaton Co. Ltd. and subsidiaries, $5,500,000; Searle Grain Co., Winnipeg, $400,000; Western Savings and Loan Association, Winnipeg, $400,000; British American Oil Ltd., $1,650,000; Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd. $1,250,000; Lake of the Woods Milling Co. Ltd., $650,000.

ARMY'S TOTAL

The army in Canada subscribed a total of $7,250,850 during the first nine days of the loan, with $2,937,210 from the seven loan districts in Ontario.

"An important part of army bond purchase is made up of subscriptions by the Canadian Women's Army Corps, composed of girls who do not hesitate to give up accustomed little luxuries to back the attack," said loan headquarters.

C.W.A.C. personnel in military district No. 13 (Calgary) have bought more than $11,000 worth of bonds. At No. 2 centre at Vermilion, Alta., the officers have a side bet with officers in the rest of the district as to which group will raise the most.

At Regina the army girls have purchased more than $5,000 worth of bonds or more than 80 per cent of their quota, while at Dundurn, Sask., the objective has been exceeded by 113 per cent.

Canadian Arms Sent to Russia Total $100,000,000

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Canadian munitions to the value of close to $100,000,000 have gone to Russia, Munitions Minister Howe said in the House of Commons last night during consideration of the new $1,000,000,000 mutual aid measure.

Large shipments had also gone to China, the minister said.

Munitions sent to China had been through United States purchases while those to Russia had been provided through Britain through last year's $1,000,000,000 gift to Britain and other methods whereby British purchases in Canada are financed.

Under the new measure gift supplies could be sent direct as a gift from Canada to Russia or China, the Minister said.

General Giraud Proposes Provisional Central Power Be Established in Africa

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—The Independent French News Agency reported today that Gen. Henri Giraud had proposed to Gen. Charles de Gaulle that they join forces by establishing a "provisional central power" in North Africa with themselves presiding.

The proposal, the news agency said, was contained in a letter dispatched by Gen. Giraud from Algiers on April 27.

The letter pointed out it was added, that Giraud and de Gaulle would not form a "duumvirate," since the responsibility would be shared by members of an executive committee and other officials of the "central power," which would consist at first of the present French overseas council and later of consulative bodies.

FAVORS PROCLAMATION

The agency quoted Gen. Giraud as saying that when France is liberated a government must be set up on a legal basis emanating from pre-armistice legislation. Gen. Giraud was said to have proposed a proclamation addressed to the French people announcing this.

The letter added that while recognizing the French tradition that the military commander-in-chief should be subordinate to the central power, Gen. Giraud expressed the opinion that under the present circumstances it would be necessary for the commander to share the power.

Among the chief obstacles to union between the two French factions reportedly have been de Gaulle's insistance that military authority be subordinated to the civil authortly and that provision be made to include in the government underground leaders in France.

SUGGESTS MEETING

The consultative bodies suggested by Gen. Giraud, the news agency said, would be a national consultative committee of 60 or 80 members, as representative as possible; a supreme legislative council; a committee composed of representatives of resistance groups in France, and an information committee.

As previously announced, Gen. Giraud asked that Gen. de Gaulle meet him somewhere in North Africa other than Algiers and that they proceed to Algiers together after reaching an agreement.

Gen. de Gaulle has insisted all along that he wishes to meet Gen. Giraud in Algiers.

Coldwell, Graydon Request Evidence In Arvida Strike

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, supported by Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, asked yesterday in the house of commons that a transcript of evidence taken during an inquiry into last year's Arvida, Que., aluminum plant strike be tabled in the house.

Labor Minister Mitchell said the report of Bernard Rose, who headed the inquiry, was a confidential report, and for that reason he had not tabled a transcript of evidence.

He indicated later the transcript would be tabled.

Mr. Coldwell said an order passed by the house called for the transcript.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he agreed that if documents had been ordered by the house they should be produced.

F.D.R. Expects No Mine Strike

WASHINGTON, May 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt gave a clear indication to a press conference today that he expects no strike of coal miners against the government.

"Are coal miners employees of the government," a reporter asked, "and, if so, can they strike against the government?"

He said he would reply to the affirmative to the first part of the question, and on the second, he remarked that he had been in the government a great many years and could not recollect any strike by government employees against the government.

He was asked, too, whether he planned for the government to continue operation of the mines it has taken over until "a new contract is signed and peace assured in the industry."

He said he had heard nothing until today about stopping the running of the mines.

Planes Moved to Coast

Nazis Concentrate All Fighters Possible in Europe to Stop Allies

By WALTER CRONKITE

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, May 7.—The German air force appeared today to have concentrated all the fighter plane strength it could muster in western Europe in an effort to stop the carefully-prepared and ever-increasing Allied air onslaught.

British bombers and Flying Fortresses were meeting heavier fighter opposition in their raids. Intelligence reports indicated that scores of additional Nazi fighters are being moved into coastal airdromes.

Every known aerial weapon developed by the Allies probably will be flung into a constant air offensive which the R.A.F., the R.C.A.F., and the U.S. air forces are preparing.

FACE COMPLEX JOB

Reichsmarshal Herman Goering's Luftwaffe faced an exceedingly complex job, one which he seems to know is tougher than that Britain had before the initiative switched to the Allied side.

The R.A.F.'s problem was to intercept German bombers somewhere over the short coastline of a comparatively small island. But the Luftwaffe has a coastline extending from the North Atlantic to the Mediterranean.

German fighter strength must be spread thin of necessity—dangerously so, the Allies believe. Recent reports said that Germany had practically abandoned production of offensive aerial weapons such as bombers to concentrate on defensive ones such as Focke-Wulf fighters.

When the Flying Fortresses recently penetrated to Bremen through opposition to bomb the big Focke-Wulf assembly plant, they ran into all kinds of fighters, including every model in German production.

NEW-TYPE PLANES

New types and increasing numbers of fighters will be thrown into the battle to support the fortresses, it appeared certain.

These planes, it was indicated, were being put in already in numbers capable of handling all the fighter opposition the Germans can muster, giving the bombers free run to the target.

The evidence appeared in the May 4 Antwerp raid in which the Fortresses turned local Ford and General Motors works being used by the Nazis into rubble without loss while almost 200 Allied fighters held off the Nazi opposition.

Edmonton Has First Claim

The Government will apparently find no trouble getting tenants for the houses to be built here by Wartime Housing. More than 400 applications for the 250 houses planned have already been received at the city hall, though the building operations have not yet started. Perhaps this very definite assurance that the houses can be rented as soon as they are ready for occupancy will hurry along the construction.

It should help also to bring a favorable response to priority applications made by private parties who want to build for their own accommodation or with a view to selling or renting. The housing shortage in Edmonton is a known and present reality, not a suppositious condition nor a prospective need. All the hundreds of houses projected could be filled up at once if they were in being.

War needs of course come first, and materials being scarce these needs must be met whatever cramping and crowding civilians may have to put up with. But there cannot be any place in Canada where a serious shortage of housing is more clearly known to exist or where the demand is more likely to be permanent. This should count strongly in Edmonton's favor whenever the supply of materials will permit concessions being made to civilian requirements anywhere.

—V—

Canada Needs More Trees

Arbor day did not arouse much interest in Edmonton this year. But that does not mean that forestry is not a matter of importance to the people of Alberta. It only means that locally the two ideas were not associated as they should be.

Edmonton just now is badly in need of more houses than it is likely to get. Building materials are woefully scarce, so scarce that priorities have to be obtained from Ottawa, with agreement at Washington, in order that lumber for house-building can be secured.

At the same time trees are being cut down in this and the other provinces faster than there is any likelihood they are being replaced by new growth. The war has struck our forests a cruel blow, while it has diverted the forest-products from constructive use to the ends of destruction.

The only way to repair the damage is to plant trees and take care of those which nature provides by the dropping of seeds from trees already growing. There should therefore be keen interest in Edmonton, as in every other part of Canada, in the forestry conference held at Toronto. A vigorous and well-directed reforesting policy is one of the needs of Canada. It has been postponed too long.

There are not many ways in which the people of today can help to promote the well-being of their children's children so much as by seeing that the forests of the Dominion are made an ample and perpetual heritage.

—V—

That Day Is Coming

Half-way through the campaign period found Edmonton half-way to its Victory Loan quota and Northern Alberta a bit beyond the half-way mark. As elsewhere, too, the daily reports showed sales in the city and in the district to be on the up grade. This indicates that both quotas will be reached, perhaps exceeded.

This is something that should arouse the interest of every person in town and country who could buy a bond or a number of them but has not yet done so. Thousands of townsfolk and countryfolk are fortifying themselves against the future by putting their savings into these gilt-edged securities. Their judgment and example are not to be ignored as being without meaning.

When the war is over and post-war uncertainties have to be faced, it is not the person with a pocketful of Victory bonds who will be doing the worrying. The anxiety then will be on the part of those who could have bought bonds but didn't. And now is the time for everyone to get clearly in mind that that day is coming, and is bringing with it problems which no person in Canada will be able to side-step. He will have to meet them.

Every Canadian who has the price of a bond, or who has a steady job which leaves him a margin large enough to pay for a bond on the instalment plan, is deciding now whether he will meet those post-war conditions with some resources to tide him over the difficult period, or will have to meet them empty-handed. There is no better place to put "rainy day" savings than to invest them in Victory bonds.

Will History Repeat?

King Boris of Bulgaria is said to have fled from his capital, as the result of May-day "demonstrations". What kind of demonstrations is suggested in the news coming from Axis sources that in Sofia upwards of a thousand people were arrested for rebellious activities. If Boris didn't get out it was probably because the getting was not very good.

Bulgaria is a Slav country ruled by a king of Teutonic extraction. In the first great war Boris' father dragged the country into the fray on the side of Germany, Austria and Turkey. At its close Ferdinand abdicated, at the unofficial but very urgent prompting of his subjects. Boris came to the throne. When Hitler started the second great war Boris in turn delivered Bulgaria to Nazi domination.

But Bulgaria's part in the war has been only the role of Mussolini up to the downfall of France. Boris' spirit was willing, but the spirit of his people was not. Bulgarian troops were not sent to Russia—for the obvious reason that they would likely have joined the Russians and fought the Axis. And the added reason that Turkey might take the opportunity to regain some of the territory Bulgaria took from it thirty years ago.

When Herr Hitler rounded up his satellites recently and demanded more men for his armies Boris was in line, and was told he should do something more for the cause than sit on the fence and glare at the Allies. The May-day riots were evidently the reaction of the populace of his capital to his attempt to carry the Fuehrer's orders into effect. They may have marked the opening of a show-down between Boris and his subjects.

—V—

Later despatches explain that the "heavy loss" of Allied fighters was not due to the Jap airmen who raided Port Darwin, but to tropical storms. The Spitfires chased the raiders too far out to sea and got caught in the gales. The raiders may have got caught too and suffered as badly.

—V—

People in the United States subscribed $17,000,000,000, instead of the $13,000,000,000 asked for in the second war loan. To make an equally good showing subscriptions to Canada's Fourth Victory Loan must total about $1,500,000,000. That is a good mark to aim at, since the $1,100,000,000 asked is the minimum amount needed.

Chairman's Walking Stick

By STEPHEN LEACOCK

It was pretty well understood by the middle of the Victory Loan campaign in Mariposa that on the final evening they would present the chairman of the committee with a stick. This was partly on the chairman's own account. Jim Heavyside—that's the older one; don't confuse him with young Jim—is one of the biggest business men in Mariposa, head of the largest of the companies, and just retired from active work a month ago after a long life of service to the town. And now he's thrown himself into this campaign with all his old time energy. In any case he's a good feller: I mean he's all right.

Stephen Leacock

It has always been the thing in Mariposa to give a man a walking stick in recognition of any public service. They gave a stick to the designer of the historic monument in the Park, and a stick for the municipal abattoir, and a stick for the new wing of the asylum that increased its capacity three to one and definitely put Mariposa on the map as a home for the feeble-minded.

Generally when they're going to give a stick the idea gets started and goes round town, confidentially, of course, so that the man himself won't know it. In this case, as a matter of fact, the idea originated in Jeff's Barber Shop and it was Jeff himself who first started it. He stopped his scissors one afternoon and rested his elbow on the customer's neck and said: "What about a stick for Jim Heavyside?"

The idea caught right on. And Jeff—you know how a modest man gets encouraged and goes on—said that to his mind, one of these Malacca canes with a band on would be just right. It appears that they sell canes like that clear up to a hundred dollars, and past it, though you wouldn't think it.

Well, that was all settled and the next thing was to raise the money. Bill Landy,—he's the mining broker I spoke of, generally does that because he understands finance. He just gets from each feller what he feels like giving, and keeps it confidential. He gives out nothing except the total. A lot of mining business is done that way. They just tell you what you get.

So that was all settled, and Bill got busy and a couple of days later he was telling a group of us in the shop that he had all the money for the cane in sight, when who should walk in but Jim Heavyside himself. He was leaning on a Malacca cane. You could have knocked any of us down with a club.

One of the fellers, in a chair, who could only half see, called out, "What's the matter, Jim, gone lame?"

"No," said Jim Heavyside with a laugh, "the boys at the factory gave me a farewell supper last night and this stick as a presentation. "That's the third stick," he added, "that I've got in less than a month. Take a look at it, isn't it a dandy?"

They passed it round but of course the heart was out of the idea now. They had to hink of something else.

Well, the next day, Jeff said to some of the customers in the shop, "Professor Byron was up here from the city yesterday and he says why not give Mr. Heavyside one of these sets of books,—what is it,—an encyclopedia?"

"An encyclopaedia," said one of the fellows. "Why, Jim Heavyside could never read that. He's no scholar."

"You don't have to read an encyclopaedia says another. It is for the front room. And when you buy them they sell you a glass case right with them so that you don't have to open it even for dusting. Bert Trawley has one,—has had it for ten years,—and it's in dandy shape,—good as new,—they never open it."

"Grandfather had one," said another customer, "given to him like this when he retired, but he read his: yes, sir, sat down to read it clear through and get the good out of it. But he was too old when he started. He died in the letter A. But Jim Heavyside is only sixty-five. He can tackle it."

So it was settled that the presentation gift would be an encyclopaedia. But just to avoid all error this time they got Bill Landy to go up to the Heavysides' house to spy round and see if they had one.

Lucky they did. They had one sure enough, and a real beauty, an antique, in fine old leather, at least seventy years old. Goodness knows what it would fetch today. So that was a lucky escape from another bad break.

Then came a suggestion that carried every one with it. It's a wonder that so often the right thing never occurs to any one at first. This idea like so many others, came from Peter Cogland, the new lawyer in Mariposa. He's always full of ideas and popular. Of course he's new to Mariposa,—only been here six years,—but the feeling is that after he's been in town a while and gets settled, he'll play quite a part.

Anyway it was Peter who said, "Why not give Jim Heavyside a case of Scotch Whisky?" Well, the idea just caught like wild fire. Someone said, "But Jim doesn't drink," And Peter said "That doesn't matter. You see, he has to entertain a lot, and now all the more because of this campaign and being retired. He'll have fellers in his house all the time. This whisky will come in just right. But listen,—a case is only two dozen itsn't it,—we might make it two cases,—one for Jim and one for Mrs. Heavyside." "That's right," said one of the boys, "the only question would be whether Scotch whisky is as acceptable as gin,—a case of real old dry gin,—"

"Or if you come to that," interrupted George Summers, "What about a case of rye?"

But he was ruled out. Everybody knew that George only drank rye.

The only question was whether such a presentation was legal. Would the law of the province allow it or not! So Jeff said, "I tell you boys, why don't you telegraph down to the city and ask if it's legal to give the chairman of a Loan Committee a case of whisky, — "I can't express it right," said Jeff, "but no doubt Mr. Cogland could."

So Peter Cogland got a pencil and a pad and they started framing a telegram to the Attorney General's office. It was certainly hard to phrase.

"A group of citizens of Mariposa desire to know. . . ."

That didnt' sound right.

"On behalf of the undersigned group. . . ."

And that sounded wrong.

"Would you consider a case of Scotch whisky. . . ."

No, that sounded backwards.

Then some one suggested, why shouldn't they write it just the way Jeff said it,—

"Is it legal to give the chairman of our loan committee a case of whisky?"

So that was what they sent.

Telegrams are like that.

The answer came right back while most of them were still sitting round discussing it.

"Presentation entirely legal. Writing you to that effect."

So that was great. They started right away picking brands of a Liquor List, each one what he liked best.

Naturally there were quite a number of fellers in the shop next day when the noon mail came in. The letter was addressed to Jeff and it read:

"Your proposed presentation of one or more cases to the Chairman of your Victory Loan Committee is entirely within the law. The only limitation upon it is that the cases must not be bought for this purpose but must be filled with bottles taken from the private stock of individual subscribers."

Well, say! . . . Talk about a Victory Campaign—talk about sacrifice and winning the war—but when it comes to . . . well, I mean when you ask a man to—well, who would want to . . . oh, no, reason is reason.

So that was the end of that. I will admit that for the moment all the fellers looked pretty down-hearted, almost felt mean. They knew that they were right in not asking one another to give up private whisky but somehow they didn't feel so good.

Luckily there came to Peter Cogland on the spur of the moment one of those bright ideas that will some day send him to Ottawa—or half way to it. Anyway—as far, say as Kingston.

"I've git it," he said. "We'll give Jim Heavyside a hundred dollar Victory Bond."

Wasn't it simple? and timely? and obvious? And yet no one had thought of it. It's always like that. Give the Chairman one of his own Bonds! Why of course!

So the meeting,—it was a sort of meeting,—broke up with enthusiasm and went to dinner.

I lingered behind a moment.

"That's fine, isn't it? I said, "that was the real solution."

Jeff shook his head.

"I don't know that I hold with it," he said. "You give a man one of his own Bonds and it seems like giving milk to a milkman,—or it's like giving me a free shave and a shampoo". And, he added gloomily, "Jim will be disappointed about the stick.' "About the stick?" I said.

"Yes, he is expecting it. He'd heard something about it. He's got the notion of sticks. You see, Jim Heavyside is not vain but he's pretty proud of having three sticks given to him, and he was hoping to make it four. That's why he came down here with the Malacca cane. In fact, it was my idea. I said to him, "Mr. Heavyside if you'll come down to the shop and bring one of your sticks that'll put the boys on their mettle to give another."

Luckily it hasn't been too late. Everything is arranged and the Chairman will get his stick. We have it all ready, and real dardy. Some of the fellers think it must be worth a hundred and fifty dollars, some more. No one knows how much Bill Landy collected or what he paid for it. "Better taste," Bill said, "to keep it confidential."

Liberal Party Is United

Ontario Convention Brings Hepburn's Feud to a Close

By B. T. RICHARDSON

TORONTO—From the national viewpoint, the healing of the breach between the provincial and dominion branches of the Liberal party is important. Regardless of the immediate political consequences in the province, the ultimate effect, it is believed, will be beneficial to the Liberals. It could hardly be otherwise.

The reason why this is true is obvious. There is but one Liberal party in Ontario. The provincial and the dominion organizations work through one and the same set-up. For that reason, dominion and provincial politicians were about equally represented at the convention.

The real significance of Mr. Nixon's leadership, therefore, is that after eight years of internecine war, there is peace. No longer is the Liberal party torn asunder. It now faces the future united and in good heart and whether or not a provincial election brings defeat, the gain is substantial. Actually, the prospects are that an election will bring victory. The mood of the convention was that the one great obstacle to success was Mr. Hepburn's grudge against Mr. King and the delegates made it very clear that they had never shared it.

Surface Crack

As a generalization, it is true to say that the convention proved that the Liberal party in Ontario has never been divided. What appeared to be a fissure running clean through the party was actually merely a surface crack. All efforts to deepen it failed and in the result of this convention the party is probably more united than at any time in the past.

To place the various personalities in proper relationship to the events of the past few months, it is necessary to glance back over the record. What actually happened at the convention on April 29-30 is simple. Mr. Nixon was elected leader on the first ballot and by a large majority. The defeated candidates promptly rallied to him, making the choice unanimous. Mr. Hepburn, it became known, had resigned the leadership three days before the convention met and he, too, had made it clear that he favored Mr. Nixon as his successor.

Mr. Hepburn entered Ontario politics in earnest in 1934 when he defeated the Henry government. In 1935 he was the Young Napoleon fresh from his triumph of the year before and eager to help the Dominion party. He campaigned for Mr. King and clearly expected special recognition from the Dominion leader after Mr. Bennett had been defeated. Mr. King gave him none, for which no doubt Mr. King is to be blamed.

Hostility

Mr. Hepburn's resentment gradually developed into hostility. His dislike of Mr. King steadily deteriorated into personal hatred, coloring his policies. His judgment became warped and he was led into extremities of language and action from which even the most devoted of his followers shrank. As the feud became more bitter, he gradually lost his hold on his party and in the end his leadership was forfeit. He paid the final score when Mr. Nixon supplanted him.

It is now evident that during these years, and more particularly since the outbreak of the war, Mr. Hepburn was conscious of his waning popularity with his own party. Yet rather than abate his personal hatred of Mr. King, he turned for support to other groups. At one time he seemed all but committed to an alliance with the Conservatives. He bid for their support in his crusade against the C.I.O. in 1937. Still later he strove desperately for Labor support. Last summer he made open advances even to the Communists. Mr. Hepburn did not willingly surrender his place and power. He tried in every conceivable way to replace the support he was losing in his own party.

Feud

These irrational changes of attitude, of course, were but a part of his anti-King campaign; and they obscured the actual effect of his feud upon his own fortunes. Thus his bitter attacks on Mr. King and the Dominion Liberals brought him much praise from the Toronto clique of King-haters. So long as he attacked Ottawa he was lauded and petted by the Globe and Mail and Conseravtives generally.

From the Conservative viewpoint, what could be better than this insurrection in the ranks of the enemy? Thanks to Mr. Hepburn, the Conservatives could operate right inside the Liberal defences.

If any proof were needed of the essential unity of the Liberal party in Ontario it is to be found in the fact that Mr. Hepburn's animosity to Ottawa achieved so little. The ructions before the war were followed in January, 1940, by an outright attack in the legislature by Mr. Hepburn on the war policies of the King government. Mr. King's response was to dissolve parliament and in the general election which followed, Mr. Hepburn was smothered.

Defeat

He bobbed up again after Mr. Meighen took over the Conservative leadership and was seeking a seat in South York. Mr. Hepburn campaigned for Mr. Meighen and shared the ignominy of the defeat. Mr. Hepburn also took the stump in other Federal by-elections, speaking against Dominion Liberal candidates, always without success.

And, at last, at the convention at Toronto, there was no discussion of provincial affairs. The one point in which the convention was in trested, in judging the candidates for leadership, was their attitude towards Ottawa. The convention, overwhelmingly, was of the view that the King government has done and is doing a good job in this war. And in choosing Mr. Nixon, they chose a man who has consistently supported the King government and without exception defended its war record. No question of political politics divided the delegates and Mr. Nixon made it clear that he had no quarrel whatsoever with the provincial policies of the Hepburn government, of which he was a member up to last fall.

Soft Pedal on Fourth Term for Roosevelt Is Strategy

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON. — Democratic party chieftains have secretly decided on two major points of strategy for the 1944 election campaign.

First—Not to talk about a fourth term for President Roosevelt. The strategy is, "Mum's the word" regarding the President. Speeches by prominent Democrats urging him to run again will be taboo from now on.

Drew Pearson

Second — Democratic leaders have decided to concentrate activities during the campaign on keeping a two-thirds majority in the Senate to support the President on the peace treaty. (The House does not vote on treaties.)

It passed unnoticed, but there was a tell-tale illustration of the "no fourth term talk" strategy at a recent dinner in Philadelphia for the Democratic organization of Eastern Pennsylvania. New Deal Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania made an all-out fourth term speech, but three speakers who followed him—Democratic National Chairman Frank Walker, Attorney General Francis Biddle and former Representative Joseph Casey, a White House adviser—didn't breathe a word about a fourth term.

Walker's recent trip through the nation, made to tap political sentiment, convinced him that it will be very difficult for the Democrats to retain their slim majority in the House next year.

That is why Walker and his associates have decided to concentrate on the Senate. In doing so, Walker will not hesitate to cross party lines and support Republican candidates (behind the scenes, of course) who can be counted on to back up the President's peace policies.

One GOP candidate the Democratic leadership will definitely support is Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth College, who will run against isolationist Senator Charles Tobey in the New Hampshire Republican primary next year.

Travelling

As Vice President Wallace was saying good-bye on his trip to South America, he asked Mrs. Laurence Duggan, wife of the State Department's Latin American expert who was accompanying him:

"Mrs. Duggan, is there anything you want me to do for your husband?"

"Mr. Vice-President," replied Mrs. Duggan tactfully, "my husband is a man who needs a lot of sleep."

On the trip which followed, however, neither Duggan nor Wallace got much sleep. They were on the go night and day—receptions, speeches, plane hops, more receptions, more speeches. However, when they arrived home both looked extremely well. Bronzed as an Inca Indian, Wallace had lost ten pounds, never was in better health.

Since then he has been getting up around 5:30 every morning to transplant vegetables in his sister's garden. She and her husband, the Swiss Minister, live not far from Wallace's hotel, and he goes by there every morning for an hour's work before breakfast.

A farmer all his life, Henry misses the feel of the earth on his fingers.

Surplus Sailors

War Shipping Administration has been nursing an internal dispute over the vexatious problem of providing seamen for the new Liberty ships. Two or three officials are resigning, others are writing memos in a high state of emotion.

According to their heated charges, WSA is training thousands of apprentices for non-existent jobs, is holding these young draft-age men idle, and is conspiring to drive the maritime unions from the sea.

According to one confidential memo, written by pro-labor officials inside the War Shipping Administration, the Training Division has been overstaffed in a frantic effort to build a backlog of 10,000 men for maritime training, before the Army, Navy or draft boards can get their hands on them, largely to head off the unions.

The charge is that if the ships are manned with new men, they will be more tractable, and will follow the "service line" rather than the "labor line."

In broad outlines, the ruction is an expression of the mutual distrust existing between maritime unions and the Navy. The WSA training program is bringing thousands of new seamen into the industry who threaten to upset union domination.

In fact so many trainees have been brought in that thousands of them are cooling their heels, waiting for berths which cannot be provided, because sixty per cent of all crews must be experienced men.

Meantime, pro-Union WSA officials claim that many trained and experienced seamen in other jobs are not being called to maritime service. They are union members.

"It is fairly clear," says one memo, "that the Training Division opposes the infusion into the Merchant Marine of anything but new blood of its own peculiar type, count and color. The question is, why?"

This indignant official answers the question as follows: "If it is because the independent character of the experienced American merchant seaman is subversive to the best interests of the American Merchant Marine, then the majority of the men who sail the ships today are right in suspecting that the government is building a reserve of more tractable men to drive them from the sea."

Note.—When officer candidates finish training at the Maritime Schools at Ft. Trumbull, Conn., or Alameda, Cal., there is such a backlog of waiting officers that they are permitted, if not encouraged, to travel home at government expense for vacation.

English Mis-spoken

LETTERS TO THE LONDON DAILY TELEGRAPH

Sir:—It is strange, as your correspondents point out, that "Shrewsbury" should be pronounced, by those who know best, as "Shrozebury", whereas others, not unnaturally, pronounce it as "Shroosebury", "going by the spelling".

In my own county a similar mistake often occurs. "Keighley" is frequently pronounced "Keely", as you will see, it is spelt, whereas it is correctly pronounced "Keethly".

Fortunately, even foreigners rarely made a mistake about London River, "Thames" is always pronounced "Tems", as it is spelt.

What, however, are we to do about our Russian Allies, who confront us with names like "Dnepropetrovsk", which, laughably, they insist on pronouncing "Dnepropetrovsk"?

WILLIAM MABANE, M.P.
House of Commons.

Sir:—Some time ago the Town Clerk of Cirencester declared he could always tell visitors because they were so careful to call the town "Sizziter", whereas the local people followed the spelling and gave the name four syllables.

I have lived in East Gloucestershire for 50 years, and can vouch for the partial truth of that statement. Cottagers do pronounce the name as it is spelt. The direct question: "Does this road lead to Sizziter? would probably be answered: "Never heard of it."

F. H. STEVENSON.
Hucknall, Notts.

Sir:—I am prompted to quote an incident related by an old friend, a member of the company of Sir Herbert Tree. During a rehearsal of "False Gods" Tree had tried patiently to induce a young actress to refrain from pronouncing "Nile" to sound like "Nail". At last he despaired, clutched his brow and exclaimed: "My dear, my dear, have you no vowels of compassion!"

SAX ROHMER.
Reigate Hill.

Sir:—Most cultured people pronounce the word "target" with a strong accent on the first syllable, and the second part something between "it" and et", probably nearer the former. Those who want "target" are merely following a half-baked snob tendency to make the pronounciation conform to the spelling, as in the case of "Shrewsbury".

E. BILLINGHAM.
Worcester.

Sir:—The worst BBC offenders are the women announcers with their exaggerated pronunciation of the modern and ugly "or" as "aw". For instance, "The next is an awchestral recawding of Handel's Wawter Music, faw the Fawces at faw o'clock." S. LARKIN.
Lincoln.

Sir:—Why do announcers speak of "The Tar of London" when they mean "Tower", and "flars" when they mean "flowers"? And why "vegdables"?

Greece Looks to Allies For Aid in Rebuilding War's Most Ravaged Land

Greece, one of the world's worst war-ravaged countries, must look to her allies for help in post-war rehabilitation, says her Prime Minister in one of a series of articles on how United Nations view the peace. Then she will be ready and able to play her traditional role in world plans for more permanent international co-operation, he continues.—EDITOR.

By EMMANUEL TSOUDEROS
Prime Minister of Greece

CAIRO, May 7.—(AP)—I have been asked to express my views on certain matters that are of primary concern to the Greek people.

One of these deals with the problems that will confront the nation and its representatives in the transition from war to peace after the enemy has been overthrown.

Another concerns the part that Greece expects to play at the peace conference.

A third has to do with recommendations for regional organizations that will have to be set in operation for maintenance of future peace.

EVERYTHING PLUNDERED

As for the first of these, you know that in Greece the enemy has plundered and destroyed everything. The work of rehabilitation will have to begin the very moment that the last shot is fired. This will be an enormous undertaking and will have to be carried out without delay if famine and disease are to be halted.

We cannot undertake this alone. We shall need help. A great deal of help. Our allies in war will have to become our collaborators in peace.

After this stage all our energies will have to be directed toward a restoration of the country's productive capacities. Factories will have to be tooled and opened, housing provided, families separated and brought together.

As for the aims of the Greek people at the peace conference—this is a question the people themselves will have to answer after their deliberation.

NOT IMPERIALISTIC

I can tell you, however, that the Greek people have no imperialistic designs or intentions. Nevertheless, they hope that the integration of national unity will be insured and they hope they will be made safe against the fear of a recurrence of new invasions in the future. Experience in this war and the last war shows that this only can be achieved by appropriate measures for the safety of frontiers.

As for the maintenance of future peace—one answer to this question can be found in the Balkan union pact which Greece signed with Yugoslavia Jan. 15, 1942.

But we also are very much interested in a broader policy of union among the various Allied nations along the lines Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and other leaders of the United Nations have expounded in recent addresses.

BASIS FOR PEACE

The necessity of basing the world's peace on a system of regional agreements concluded by governments representing the freely-manifested will of their peoples was felt and accomplished—as far as it depended on them—by the Greek people in the period between the two wars.

Even before we obtained our independence and became a free state, enlightened leaders of the Greek nation like Rhigas Pheraios gave a signal of solidarity and co-operation among all the peoples of the Balkans.

(Rhigas Pheraios was a patriot and poet, the first martyr of the Greek war of independence, put to death by the Turks in 1798.) From that moment on it was one of the ideals of our people and brought inspiration to the great statesmen of Greece like Tricoupis and Eleutherics Venizelos. (Charilaos Tricupis was a 19th century premier, Venizelos died in 1936.)

Belief in the necessity of solidarity and co-operation always has been deeply rooted in the Greek people, even in times before the present period of carnage.

CONTINUE TO FIGHT

But even now during the present bitter struggle the Greeks are fighting both in the front line and behind the scenes.

The Greek ideal is that the nation is fighting not only for itself but for the whole of humanity so that all may live in an international society founded on an actual understanding of co-operation, peace and justice.

Thief Shoots Self Fatally in Scuffle

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Michael Casselle, only five feet three, tackled two burglars yesterday when his wife accosted them as they fled from a nearby suite in the Casselle's Brooklyn apartment. One escaped, but Casselle clung to the other who drew a gun. Casselle grabbed the man's wrist and, when the burglar threatened to shoot, he twisted the weapon towards the marauder. The gun went off and the intruder dropped dead from a throat wound.

Question Lack Of Action For Canadian Army

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP)—Canadian military forces overseas have remained in England because of the decision of the British high command, Air Minister Power told the House of Commons yesterday in a spirited reply to criticisms by Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con., York-Sunbury).

Mr. Hanson, speaking on Finance Minister Ilsley's resolution for a $1,000,000,000 appropriation to provide supplies for the United Nations, had questioned the government on the inactivity of Canadian military forces overseas.

"It is because they are doing something else which is considered important by the high command," Maj. Power interjected.

TO PRESS QUESTION

Mr. Hanson said that later in the session he would ask Defence Minister Ralston, who was not in the House at the time, why "after 3½ years in Britain with the war going on in several theatres, no Canadian battalion, no Canadian brigade or no Canadian division has yet been in action."

(Approximately 5,000 Canadian troops took part in last August's large-scale attack on the German-occupied French channel port of Dieppe.)

"It is because they require them to remain in England," said Maj. Power.

"Or is it the result of Canadian action?" Mr. Hanson suggested.

"It is the result of British action," Maj. Power repeated. "I can tell my honorable friend with the fullest possible authority. It was not as a result of Canadian action."

GLAD OF STATEMENT

Mr. Hanson: "I am glad to have that statement. It is the first time I have heard it."

Maj. Power: "It has been made before—not once but a dozen times—in this house."

Mr. Hanson said that "I happen to know further that it is not very pleasant for those men overseas, some of them there since December, 1939, to have it thrown in their faces that while Australia and New Zealand are fighting gallantly on the sands of Africa, personnel of the Canadian Army are not there."

He said there should be some explanation from the defence minister.

No Knowledge of Britain Selling Canadian Gifts

OTTAWA, May 7. — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley last night told the house of commons that there was no knowledge here of Britain selling to other countries war supplies provided by Canada through last year's $1,000,000,000 gift to Britain.

It was possible, he said, that some Canadian supplies paid for by last year's gift had been shipped to Australia and charged against that country by Britain. But Britain had supplied Australia with sterling funds in the first place.

Munitions Minister Howe said all the goods and resources possessed by Britain had been thrown into the common pool for the defeat of the Axis and the defence of empire countries. Britain could be depended upon to conduct herself "creditably" in this matter.

Airman Obtains Membership in Goldfish Club

LONDON, May 7—A member of the Wolf squadron of the R.C.A.F. in Britain, Flying Officer George D. Aitken, of 7515 101 street, Edmonton, recently became a member of the Goldfish club, an organization whose membership is composed entirely of airmen whose lives have been saved by use of their rubber dinghies.

The Edmonton pilot was forced to bail out over the English channel last June, when his moter packed up after he had been attacked by three enemy fighters, and he spent about three-quarters of an hour in the rubber boat before he was picked up.

The Goldfish club is sponsored by a manufacturer of the inflatable dinghies, which are attached to the parachute as part of the normal equipment of every fighter pilot.

Origin of the name of the club is explained on their letterhead as "Gold for the value of life. Fish for the sea."

A pilot who uses his dinghy after bailing out writes to the club, explaining the circumstances of his case, and if the claim is considered valid he is made a member and receives their badge.

Aitken recently received his. The insignia consists of a goldfish with a single white wing, like that of an air gunner, on a black background.

A FOND HOPE

In a letter to Aitken, the secretary of the club said: "I am glad to see you knew your dingy drill, but certainly hope you do not have to apply for a bar. My congratulations on your good show, and best wishes for the future."

"We had been on a 'do' over France," Aitken recalled when he received his membership badge. "The squadron was at about 20,000 feet over the French coast, near Le Touquet, when we got in a scrap with some German fighters.

"I got mixed up with three of them, and finally shook them off some way out over the channel.

"I dived down and went home low over the water, but they had hit the engine, because it went on fire some miles off Dungeness," Aitken said.

He bailed out at about 900 feet, and when he hit the water was able to get the dinghy inflated without any difficulty and climb aboard.

"A launch picked me up after a while," Aitken went on, "and they took me across the channel again to within a few miles of the French coast while they looked for somebody else.

"There, I transferred to a regular air sea rescue launch and came back to England," he concluded.

Anti-Nazi Violence In Holland Quelled

LONDON, May 7—(CP)—Netherlands monitors reported last night the German-controlled Netherlands radio, in broadcasting during the past three days, had hinted at an outbreak of anti-Nazi violence in Holland, which had been quelled by forces armed with machine-guns.

The reports came after Pieter S. Gerbrandy, Netherlands premier, had broadcast from London to the population of Holland calling for general resistance against the attempt to re-intern the 400,000 former members of the Netherlands army. Premier Gerbrandy warned, however, against any premature uprising.

The monitors recorded a German spokesman as saying:

"Those who let themselves be seduced and incited to resistance gamble with their lives. One can take it as a fact that everybody who obeys such instructions (Premier Gerbrandy's call to resistance) risks life and liberty.

"Moreover, after a short, fierce action everything remains as it was."

Woman Cheers as Shells Hit Nazis

MATEUR, Tunisia, May 5.—(Delayed) — (AP) — A plump French farm wife who had been unwilling hostess for 15 days to German army officers stood on a hilltop outside Mateur today and clapped her hands with joy as American artillery shells beat against foothills across the valley where the Nazis are entrenched.

"Hit him again" she cheered in French while groups of refugees from bomb battered Mateur laughed and shouted with her as each shell burst far away on the opposite hills.

Seeks Divorce

WASHINGTON, May 7—(AP)—Mrs. Louise Cromwell Atwill, former wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, filed suit yesterday to divorce actor Lionel Atwill, her third husband, charging desertion and misconduct. Mrs. Atwill's first husband was Walter Brookes, Jr. She and MacArthur were divorced in 1929.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Edmonton Residents Plan Honor "Mother" Sunday With Memorable Services

Honoring mothers throughout the world, the 35th observance of Mother's Day will be Sunday, May 9, when Edmonton citizens will participate in the custom of wearing white carnations in memory of mothers who have died, or red for those still living. Although the first suggestion of a day to be set aside for honoring mothers was made in 1904, it was not until 1908 that the day was actually commemorated.

First proponent of the idea was Frank E. Hering, professor at Notre Dame University, Indiana, who was a member of the fraternal Order of Eagles. He urged such a day to be observed in every lodge, and his suggestion became popular and spread to other cities and states

Mother's Day was entered on the church calender through the efforts of Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who began in 1907 urging that fitting services be held annually. The first such service was held in her city, May 10, 1908, thereafter being designated for the second Sunday in May, which was the date that Miss Jarvis' own mother had died.

The day was intended as a memorial for her and other departed mothers, but is now observed to honor living mothers as well. It was Miss Jarvis who created the custom of wearing carnations on this day.

PROMOTED THE DAY

Several years later, Mr. Hering was elected president of the Eagles and toured the country to promote Mother's Day. A bronze tablet in the lobby of English's opera house in Indianapolis markes the place where the first known public plea for a national observance of Mother's Day was made.

The year 1943 carries even more significance because this year, the fourth of the war, many daughters and sons are in distant places. Some sons will be able to return for the day, others will send a remembrance or perhaps telephone, and some will never return, except in memory. Mother's Day, 1943, will be a sad one in many homes, and joyful in many others.

As is customary, many mothers will receive gifts as a gesture of appreciation and love from their children. Traditional are cards, candy and flowers, but war has altered even this.

Chocolates are rare now, although Edmonton stores report a sufficient supply for early shoppers. Florist shops here are experiencing a rush week as orders come in for all kinds of flowers and plants, some to be wired to distant cities in the U.S. and Canada. Telegraph and telephone companies also anticipate a busy day, Sunday.

Unique as a present for Mother's Day, and appropriate this year because of the Fourth Victory Loan campaign now in progress, will be gifts of victory bonds. These will provide for Mother's future, as well as helping her country now.

$7,000,000 Credit For Wheat Used By Soviet Union

OTTAWA, May .—(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley said in the House of Commons yesterday that $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 of a $10,000,000 Canadian credit to Russia for the purchase of wheat and flour had been used.

The credit was established last year to facilitate Russia obtaining food supplies from Canada.

The minister told Hon. P. J. A. Cardin (Lib., Richelieu-Vercheres) that as far as he knew the credit had not been increased to $25,000,000. Mr. Cardin said he had heard a report to this effect.

Education Bill Is Approved by Quebec Assembly

QUEBEC, May 7 — (CP) — The Quebec legislative assembly last night adopted the government's compulsory education bill by a vote of 30-11.

The adoption came after the house rejected by a vote of 29-12, an opposition amendment urging that the bill be returned to the committee of the whole and amended "to give justice to children of poor families and to aid school commissions, teachers and taxpayers."

The bill will make school attendance compulsory for children between the ages of six and 14.

The Story of Dieppe

By Quentin Reynolds

play hide-and-seek with the whitecaps, but through them I saw a pinprick of light. It was a light that fluttered irregularly like the heartbeat of a tired bird; a light that flickered, then died away only to be reborn when the ghostly white clouds swirled away. The airplane lurched to the right as the pilot banked.

"It is a light," came through the earphone. "You're right. No lighthouse. It's flashing—my God, he's flashing S O S!"

We circled low. But a sudden Channel mist made it hard to see anything. We circled, and occasionally in the exact centre of our circle the light flashed, hopefully now, it seemed.

"Angel calling. Angel calling." The pilot's voice wasn't gay and laughing now. He was calling his airdrome. It sounded like a Hollywood war picture. "Are you receiving, over there?"

The voice broke in. "Ronny calling. Receiving you clearly, receiving you clearly. Over over." And then my pilot saying, "Angel calling. Take position fix. Have you position fix? Returning now over." And again, "Receiving you clearly. Have position fix. Are you returning now? Why do you wish position fix? Over." My pilot, a bit petulant, "Never mind, never mind. Returning immediately."

WING ROSE

The wing, which had dropped while we circled, rose and now the slight hum of the motors increased and the speed indicator read 290 again, but inside my glass case it was still fairly quiet, and yet even there I could feel the tension of what I didn't know. We straightened out now—"flat out" as the pilots say—and the pilot told me "That's one of our chaps, you know. Probably a fighter pilot bailed out this afternoon. He's in his rubber dinghy and luckily his torch had strong batteries. He's about 15 miles off Brighton. We'll drop back to the airport and tell them about it. They'll have a boat out in no time."

The British coast, curly breakers meeting white sand, flashed below us.

"That's Brighton," the pilot called. We flew for ten minutes, then circled, and I knew we were over the airdrome. Then a thin triangle of light appeared below us.

"That's home," the pilot chuckled. "If there are Huns about, we don't show lights at all. Got to pray your way in then." I looked at our wing tips and magically a colored light had appeared on the tip of each to tell the ground crew we were friends. We landed nicely and now the pilot, knowing that no German ears could listen to his local intercommunication, talked freely to the operations room of the airdrome.

"Did you get my fix?" he asked. "Got the position right? Good. Found a chap out there signaling S O S. One of ours, I imagine. Okey. Right. Have him picked up."

The pilot turned his attention to me. "Want to see London from the air?" I definitely wanted to see London from the air, and the slim Boston began to dance down the runway. We skimmed along the black concrete, and what if there wasn't a light to show us the way? The sure-handed pilot, his fingers featherlight on the stick, knew that runway and so did this lovely aircraft. He pulled the stick back and we rose surely, clearly, gracefully, and you could feel somehow that this plane was as honest and as trustworthy as the men who had sweated to produce it. We cut diagonally through the night, away from the earth beneath, and the needle on my altimeter leaped up to two, then three thousand feet within what seemed to be seconds.

AT 5,000 FEET

"We're at 5,000 feet now," the pilot called. "She climbs fast."

"Made in America, sweetheart," I told him, complacently, and then, relenting, "but you handle her well. You must have been taking lessons by mail."

"Used to give them before the war," he said calmly. "Gave 3,000 hours' worth of lessons. We've got to keep above those balloons over London. They're very dangerous."

"I hear those balloons got two Heinkels and a Hurricane last week," I told him, and then he said that we were on the outskirts of London. I lay down, by now trustful of the glass, and peered below. We were at 7,000 feet and it was chilly.

OVER HAMMERSMITH

"We're over Hammersmith. We're approaching Kensington and we're over the West End. Recognize it?" His voice sounded like that of Ted Husing or Clem McCarthy announcing the running of the Kentucky Derby. It was 3 a.m. and London was asleep. From here not a sign of light showed in London. London might have been dead, but I knew that the night had a thousand eyes in London, and that those thousand mechanical eyes were on us. By now they'd received messages saying that we were friendly intruders. But I knew that a thousand fingers of gun crews were itching down there below. Usually a plane over London means a German plane, and it's always open season for such game.

We flashed over where I knew the Houses of Parliament to be, but from that height we couldn't see them, and I realized how absurd were the claims of Hun bombers that they had only aimed at targets over London. Even on a reasonably clear night such as this you could only find targets by instruments — not by your vision, as they boasted.

We flew up the Thames, and although I could not distinguish one building on the Embankment from another, I knew now from the bridges we crossed that we were over the Savoy Hotel. I felt a pang of remorse coming, knowing that the roar of our motors in the still night air would wake a hundred people down there in my hotel. It had happened to me dozens of times, and when the sound of a plane wakes you in the bleak hours of the night you awake to a strange, unnatural world. Your subconscious mind, after two years of believing that all planes heard late at night are enemy planes, cries "danger coming," and your half-numbed conscious mind in vain answers, "There hasn't been any alarm." But in this fight, your subconscious usually wins because even your conscious mind knows that you have often slept through sirens and awakened only to the sound of enemy airplane motors above or of exploding bombs below.

CLOUDS PARTED

We were north a bit now, and the clouds parted to show the placid dome of St. Paul's Cathedral, guarding the city as it has guarded it in a hundred raids. Beyond St. Paul's was Fleet Street and I could imagine the men in newspaper offices looking up, wondering thoughtfully if this was a jerry plane the radio detectors had missed. Sometimes they don't sound sirens for a single enemy plane. I could imagine Christiansen, editor of the Express, down there, just putting his paper to bed, and Percy Cudlipp, editor of the Herald, frowning because the sound of our motors interrupted him as he wrote his final editorial. I could imagine Michael Foot of the Evening Standard making up his first edition, and Gerald Barry of the News Chronicle swearing mildly because our plane had disturbed his train of thought. I'd be to blame if editorials were bad tomorrow. But not only Fleet Street and the correspondents of the American morning papers and American news services were awake down there below in that sprawling dark city, where not a light showed. They and twenty thousand ARP wardens and fire watchers and ambulance drivers and firemen were awake. The city slept, but she slept well-guarded now at 4 a.m. Then in the east a very thin ribbon of light showed, and my pilot called: "Time for breakfast, chum," and we circled away from London and headed for our airport seventy miles away.

BOSTON STEPPED OUT

Like a good horse hurrying home to the barn for its oats, our Boston stepped out, now seeming to know that the long night's vigil was done. An early dawn was lifting the night from the airport as we circled over it. We landed lightly, sure-footedly, and the plane swung docilely to its position on the field. I slid back the gadget you bail out through if things go bad, and shook the stiffness out of my legs. The pilot, looking like a man from Mars in his odd helmet, his intercommunication mask hiding his face, his harness and his parachute, climbed down, smiling.

"Bacon and eggs now," he suggested. "And a spot of beer. Sound good?"

"Sounds good," I admitted. "How about that kid in the Channel? Can we find out if he was picked up all right?"

"Oh, I guess they got him all right," he said casually. "Anyhow, we did what we could."

Life and death are casual matters to these RAF pilots because they deal in them every night. It wouldn't do to worry about one line pilot out there in the Channel. It wouludn't do to wonder whether or not rescue boats had found him or whether he was still floating out there on his tiny raft, despairingly flashing his small light while strength remained. He'd been shot down, probably wounded and by now if he hadn't been picked up he'd be weak and discouraged.

"No, let's not find out," the pilot said. "If we learn they couldn't find him it'll only make us feel bad." We walked over to the mess, talking about Nat Gubbins' funny column in the Sunday Express; talking about the poor Scotch we got in London; talking about how good the blackout was over the capital; talking of the golden morning which had so unobtrusively and softly crept over the airdrome during the past few moments.

He was right. It would be better not to know.

This is the story I told young Boyle, sitting there in the wardroom. "Those pilots are marvelous," he said admiringly. "And such kids—most of them."

"How old are you?" I asked, amused.

Boyle colored slightly. "I'll be twenty-one in about three hours. Tomorrow is my twenty-first birthday."

A sailor stuck his head into the room. "Captain Hughes-Hallet would like to see you on the bridge, sir."

Apparently the real show was about due to start. Boyle and I climbed up three sets of iron ladders and found the bridge.

No Sovereignty Yielded to U.S.

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP)—The government has not relinquished sovereignty of any part of the North Pacific area to the United States, nor given any jurisdiction over Canadian territory to the United States or any foreign power, it was stated in a reply tabled yesterday in the house of commons for D. G. Ross (Prog. Con., Toronto St. Paul's).

The questions asked by Mr. Ross concerned the Canada-U.S. economic committee. Mr. Ross was told the committee was set up to study and report on the possibility of more economic, efficient and co-ordinated use of the resources of the two countries for defence production; and reducing probable post-war dislocation in the two countries.

In accordance with the latter purpose, a study of the North Pacific region was undertaken.

A number of agreements between Canada and the United States on defence matters relating to the North Pacific region had been made, but for security reasons all of them could not be made public at present.

Home-Made Sugar Myth Is Exploded

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Home made sugar from beets went down the road of abandoned hope yesterday. In brief, agriculture department scientists say there's no such thing.

Departmental officials said that recently they have been swamped with letters from housewives asking to be told more about home-made sugar.

Not long ago departmental chemists perfected a method of extracting table syrup from sugar beets and offered to supply the formula to all comers. In some quarters this was taken as a solution for the sugar shortage, and, said officials, "the legend grew."

"The truth is that any housewife can make eight to 10 pints of table syrup with 100 pounds of sugar beets," they said.

"But if she evaporates the syrup she doesn't get sugar but a sort of taffy. Chemists are unimpressed with the taffy but smack their lips over the syrup."

Farmers Make Good Progress With Seeding

WINNIPEG, May 7.—Even with unsettled weather, prevailing cold and high winds, western farmers are making commendable progress with the seeding of grain across the prairies and early sown wheat is showing through the ground at a few points in all three prairie provinces. The Canadian Pacific Railway agricultural department estimates that in Manitoba wheat seeding is sixty per cent completed, in Saskatchewan 21 and in Alberta, where approximately 26 per cent is in the ground, operations are slow due to the fact that the farmers are trying to complete the threshing of last year's grain first.

Operations in the foothills province are expected to be general next week. In Manitoba a number of points are finished with seeding of wheat and oats and barley are 12 per cent in the ground. In Saskatchewan work has either not begun or is just beginning in northern sections and districts in the south report from two to forty per cent of coarse grains in the ground.

Moisture conditions are generally favorable in all parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan and are improved in Manitoba, according to the reports.

SUGAR BEETS

In Manitoba 2,000 acres of sugar beets are planted and the estimated acreage of this crop is 17,000 as compared with 14,600 last year. Warm and dryer weather is required to permit planting to proceed. Sixty-two percent of Alberta's sugar beets are sown and the earlier planting is appearing above ground with an acreage estimated at 30,000, as against 28,000 last year.

Threshing in both Alberta and Saskatchewan has made fair advance during the week, held up, however in some places because of wet weather. On the Edmonton, Lac La Biche, Barrhead and Slave Lake subdivisions of the Peace River district seeding is just started and should be in full swing by the end of the week. Moisture is excellent and on the Smoky, Peace River and Grande Prairie subdivisions the dry cool weather has resulted in the seeding of about 50 percent of the wheat acreage, 10 percent of coarse grains with general conditions favorable.

WARM WEATHER NEEDED IN WEST

WINNIPEG, May 7—According to the weekly crop report of the department of agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, weather throughout the prairie provinces has varied from cool and cloudy, with high soil carrying winds to rain and snow with frosty nights.

Clearing fields of unthreshed crops has progressed but most districts reports samples badly bleached and yields from 25 per cent to 40 per cent less than from similar fields threshed last fall, as mice and game have wintered well on outstanding grain. Surface and subsoil moisture conditions are excellent but progress in seeding has been comparatively slow and warm dry weather is now desired.

Districts report greater co-operation between farmers in helping each other complete their work and more than ever women and young people are going all out in an effort to maintain and increase production.

South Central Alberta weather has been mostly cool with frosty nights and ideal for the threshing of last year's crop still in the fields. Wheat seeding has commenced but will not be general for a week, moisture conditions are satisfactory.

In North Central Alberta weather has been cool, frosty, with high winds. Threshing is almost completed, very little seeding has been done to date and improved weather will determine when spring seeding will really get under way. Reports indicate from 25 per cent to 30 per cent decrease in wheat acreage with a slight increase for coarse grains and alfalfa. Some districts indicate a greater potato acreage this year. Hogs production is definitely increased and poulary and eff production show a marked improvement, scarcity of labor coupled with much damaged grain has caused a definite swing towards live stock.

Addresses Inquiry

Minister States Provinces Would Be Wise to Transfer Labor Powers to Dominion

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Hon. L. D. Currie, K.C., Nova Scotia labor minister, said yesterday before the National War Labor Board that he thinks it would be wise for the provinces to abrogate some of their powers in labor administration and transfer them to the Dominion government.

The board, during the third day of its general inquiry into labor matters, received briefs from the Canadian Manufacturers' association and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and heard suggestions from seven regional labor boards.

Hearings in the investigation were adjourned late yesterday until May 13.

Two provincial labor ministers who addressed the board, Mr. Currie and Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario's labor minister, and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce gave approval to the principle of collective bargaining, but the chamber placed importance on the necessity of establishing that the majority representation was fairly established by the bargaining agency.

AGAINST COMPULSION

On the other hand the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said it was opposed to any action making collective bargaining compulsory.

The Manitoba regional board recommended that the government make its wartime wage policy mandatory while the Alberta board, through correspondence placed on the record of the proceedings, said the government lacked an adequate labor and manpower policy.

Mr. Currie said Nova Scotia had, by indirect legislation, recognized collective bargaining for 40 years.

"Those who oppose the introduction of collective bargaining are making a mistake and I say that whether it applies to a government, employers or employees," he said.

"I think it would be wise for the provinces to abrogate some of the powers they now have and to transfer them to the Dominion government," he added.

VIEWS DIFFER

A different viewpoint was presented by Adam Bell, deputy labor minister for British Columbia, who said his government was not in favor of the suggestion that all collective bargaining and conciliation matters should be centred in Ottawa although some federal intervention might be necessary during war.

"We consider we have very effective pieces of legislation on these subjects," Mr. Bell said.

Presenting a brief for the Saskatchewan regional board, H. L. Johnson, board member, said the line of demarcation between those within the jurisdiction of wage control and those under the salaries order, now drawn at the rank of foreman, should be clarified.

The board suggested a division at salaries of $4,000 a year. The board also recommended that all contentious cases should be heard by regional boards at public hearings.

D. G. Pyle, secretary to the national board, placed on the record a brief from the Prince Edward Island board and correspondence from the Alberta board.

ALBERTA'S OPINION

The Alberta board said it considered some of the effects of the wage control order more detrimental than the effects it was designed to avoid. The government's labor policy had proved totally inadequate to mobilize manpower for war needs. The board recommended that workers with one or more dependents earning not more than $165 a month and those with no dependents earning not more than $125 should be exempted from wage control.

Mr. Heenan said the Ontario Regional Board was opposed to the suggestion of making regional boards whole-time organizations.

"Employers say they believe in collective bargaining but do not want to be compelled to bargain collectively, but they don't do anything about it," he said. "We have given freedom of association and collective bargaining lip service for 24 years and nothing has been done."

He urged the Dominion government to enact legislation ending any doubt about the legality of provincial collective bargaining acts.

EX-SERVICEMEN'S BRIEF

The board also received a brief from Thomas Sutton of Hamilton representing the Ex-servicemen's and Servicemen's Dependents' League. The league opposed increased wages on the ground that such increase would result in a rise in living costs and impose a hardship on pensioners, soldiers' dependents and those with fixed incomes.

The league also asked a ban on closed shop agreements and their complete abolition at the end of hostilities to prevent discrimination against ex-servicemen.

C.C.F. Party May Test Extension Of Legislatures

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said yesterday the party was considering bringing before the courts or the House of Commons the question of the legality of legislatures extending their own terms of office by bills.

The provincial legislatures referred to, he said in an interview, were those of Ontario and Saskatchewan.

"While a legislature has the right to amend the legislative act governing the length of time for which a succeeding legislature is elected," Mr. Coldwell said, "it is questionable if it can prolong its own life."

National Income Up 24.3 Per Cent.

OTTAWA, May 7—(CP)—A 24.3-per-cent increase in Canada's national income during the first quarter of this year as compared with the same period of 1942—from $1,700,000,000 to $2,112,000,000—was reported yesterday by the Dominion bureau of statistics, with the stimulus of war production listed as the "main influence."

"Economic activity reached a new high point in the first quarter of the present year," the bureau said.

". . . During the fiscal year ended March 31, the national income according to the tentative computation was $7,878,000,000 compared with $6,793,000,000 in the preceding fiscal year. The standing in March was more than $725,000,000 compared with $700,000,000 in the second month of the year. One year ago, the income in March was $583,000,000 against $556,000,000 in in the preceding month."

Gen. Andrews' Plane Crashed Mountain

By IVAR GUDMUNDSSON

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, May 7.—(AP)—Giving the first detailed account of the plane crash in which Lt.-Gen. Frank M. Andrews and 13 others were killed Monday, the lone survivor of the accident said last night the craft hit a mountain and that he believed all died instantly. The plane was en route to the United States from England.

"The visibility was only about 40 feet and we had passed several peninsulas along the coast," said the survivor, Staff Sgt. George A. Eisel, "but that last one was just too high. It happened so suddenly, and nobody was expecting anything."

"I was the rear gunner," added Sgt. Eisel, a thrice-decorated veteran of both the European and African fronts. "My turret was thrown right into the middle of the plane, or what remained of it. There I was for 26 hours before a rescue party found me. It took them an hour to dig me out."

APROPOS of the question raised during the recent Alberta basketball playoff series here between Raymond Union Jacks and No. 3 "M" Depot Red Devils as to the inclusion in box scores of "field goal attempts" and "free throw attempts," press reports of the first games in the current dominion finals at Vancouver serve to illustrate the point in issue.

Only field goals made, foul shots made, penalties and points were shown in the box scores sent out following the games, there being no corresponding columns for "attempts." The details as given while interesting apparently told only part of the story.

The clincher came yesterday, long after the story of the game including the box score had been printed and read, when subsequent comment revealed the fact that the Winnipeg girls who were beaten by 16 points, made only one out of 15 free throws.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK

THE same situation may have held in field goal attempts, but those not actually on the scene know nothing about this phase of that game, simply because the details were not disclosed in the box score.

Yes, it looks as if prominent local basketball authorities—Percy Page and Clare Hollingsworth are two of them—who favor the inclusion of the number of field goal shots appear to be on the right track.

Granted that shooting accuracy, which is based on the relative percentage between field goals and attempts may not tell the whole story in view of the varying conditions under which shots must necessarily be taken, it does serve to illustrate more of the facts which enter into the final results.

Cubs' Hi Bithorn Again Humbles Cards

Chicagoans Take Series 2 Games to 1

CHICAGO, May 7—(AP)—Hi Bithorn, Chicago Cubs' Puerto Rican right hander, smothered St. Louis Cardinals for the second time in eight days yesterday as the chicagoans beat St. Louis 5-1 to capture the series two games to one. It was the season's third victory for the big right-hander.

Bithorn held the Cards scoreless until the ninth inning while his mates picked up a run off Harry Gumbert on a pass and singles by Bill Nicholson and Heinz Becker in the fourth inning. The Cubs then blasted their 1942 Nemesis from the scene in the midst of a four-run seventh inning.

A double by Stan Hack excited Gumbert with two runs in and two more on in the seventh after singles by Harry Lowrey, Chico Hernandez and Bithorn opened the inning. Eddie Stanky, rookie second baseman, then singled home the other two runs off reliever Harry Brecheen.

The attendance was 3,811.

EXTRA INNING GIVES PHILADELPHIA VICTORY

BROOKLYN, May 7.—(AP)—Phillies bumped off Brooklyn's National League leaders Thursday for the second time in their four-game series, winning 3-2 in 10 innings.

Yesterday's tussle was a pitching duel between bespectacled John Podgajny who held the Dodgers to five hits and Buck Newsom who allowed six.

The Phillies twice came from behind to tie the score and won in the 10th when Glen Stewart opened with a triple and came home on Ron Northey's tremendous fly.

Newsom, winner of two games without a defeat previously, struck out nine and issued only three walks, but two of them came in succession in the fifth to force in a run. Brooklyn scored a run without a hit in the same inning.

The Perfect Ball Player

First Base Style Set By Great Hal Chase

It was exceedingly difficult to hit or throw the ball by Hal Chase.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, May 7—Fabulous Hal Chase set the style for first basemen. No doorkeeper played as deep and far from the bag. If Chase, the perfect ball player, had a fault as a first baseman, it was that he was not a good target. The reason was that Chase was never on the sack when another infielder threw. Infielders threw to the bag, not to him. All they had to do was come close. It was exceedingly difficult to throw or hit the ball by him.

Chase did not catch the ball. He snatched it.

Prince Hal did not hit the ball. He slapped it.

He had it all, including the physical advantages a left-hander enjoys at the position he played so well.

Nobody could field like Chase, and, in 1916, after a dozen years in the majors, he lead the National League in batting with .339. He was a right-handed batter.

He stood at the plate loosely, held the bat at the end and not firmly. His hands crawled up the bat with the pitch to meet the various situations.

HIT, RUN AND SQUEEZE

A better ball player on the batting end of the hit and run and squeeze never lived. Chase could be depended upon to hit the ball behind the runner or to slap it on the ground.

The man had wings on his feet. He stole 40 bases in 1910. His hands were faster than the eye.

He made seemingly impossible plays.

Some old baseball men consider Chase the greatest of all ball players.

Chase pitched and was a left-handed catcher for Santa Clara College while Dr. Charles Henry Strub, president of the Santa Anita Racetrack, was the crack second baseman of the University of California.

"It was a late inning and Chase was catching," recalls Dr. Strub. "We had a man on first base with none out. I was up there to sacrifice, which I did, all right. I sacrificed everybody. Chase stepped around me with the pitch, took the ball off the bat and doubled the runner at first."

"I saw Chase come in to break up a squeeze play, field the bunt, tag the man coming into the plate and double the batter with a throw to the second baseman covering first—all in one motion," relates Clyde Milan, the Washington coach.

"You couldn't cross Chase by hitting the ball by him as he charged in. He'd snatch the ball regardless of how hard is was hit provided it was within his reach, and the ball appeared to follow his glove.

"I could get down to first base with a fair degree of speed. I stole 88 bases for Washington in 1912. I could drag as good as anybody, but I couldn't drag the ball against Chase and get away with anything. Many a time I was within two or three strides of the bag, positive I had him beaten, but he never failed to bob up out of somewhere and put the ball on me."

HAD NO MORAL SENSE

Chase broke in with the Los Angeles club in 1904 as a pitcher. He played with the Yankees from 1905 through 1913, was traded to the White Sox by Frank Chance as a trouble-maker. He jumped to the Federal League, went to the Reds when peace was declared, remained there through 1918, when Christy Mathewson preferred charges against him which had to do with betting on games.

He was quietly dropped after spending the 1919 season with the Giants.

Chase was a pleasing personality. Speaking with him you would not suspect that he would do what he did.

In grace and instinct, Chase was not inferior to Ty Cobb, and he was a more accomplished hit and run man.

He had no moral sense, however, toyed with the laws of life, was suspected and caught.

Hal Chase was a rogue whose genius carried him through to big things against a handicap that would have carried an ordinary criminal to silent obloquy.

Novikoff on Ineligible List

CHICAGO, May 7—(AP)—Outfielder Lou Novikoff, holding out on Chicago Cubs for 47 days, was placed on baseball's ineligible list Thursday.

Yet, that does not end the holdout campaign of Comrade Novikoff, the celebrated Mad Russian. Lou, who is asking $10,000 as compared to the $6,000 the Cubs are affering, was reported from his Long Beach, Calif., retreat to be willing to take a little less than $10,000 but not $4,000 less.

Novikoff was placed on the ineligible list by Ford Frick, president of the National League, as a result of correspondence with Jas. T. Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs.

The ruling, applied for Novikoff's failure to report within 10 days after the start of the championship season, means even if the Russian ends his holdout, he still will have to be reinstated by Frick before he can don a uniform.

Novikoff, a .300 hitter last year, has referred to his holdout campaign as a "war of nerves" with the Cubs' business manager, but Gallagher seemingly has not been at all perturbed over the Russian's apparent stubborn attitude.

"That guy is half as stubborn as I am," Gallagher piped, refusing to say another word.

Novikoff remains the only wilful absentee in the major leagues.

Sahara Chief to Run in Calgary's Spring Race Meet

CALGARY, May 7th.—Sahara Chief, one of the handiest Canadian breds racing on the Pacific coast in recent years, will be among the handicap stars to race at Calgary's seven-day spring race beeting which begins at Victoria Park a week from Saturday.

Owned by Frank Beban, of Northfield, B.C., Sahara Chief an eight year old brown gelding, is already on the grounds and will be nominated to meet such speed stars as My Feng, Ronrico, and Chief Ritchie during the local meet.

Sahara Chief today is well up in the list of Canadian bred money winners of all time. During his racing career he has gone postwards on 102 occasions, winning 30 times with 14 seconds, 15 thirds and 14 fourths for a total of $18,990. Last year he started 17 times being five times first, three times second, four ttimes third and twice fourth, winning $3,915.

Frank Beban, owner of Sahara Chief, ranks as one of the principal thoroughbred breeders, six horses raised by him were at the races last season and all were winners. The six, during their racing career, have won a total of 63 races and $33,620.

Each day now brings additional stables to swell the racing colony. Thursday arrivals included Kihapal, Miss Olivier, Ronrico, Palla Hills, Hi Rythm, Ascot Gal, Lasswade, and Colleen Don from the Pacific coast. W. M. Abbott checked in from the south with My Feng, Glen Brush and Mickey's Best.

RACING BRIEFS

Tom Archer will be trainer of the Scotia stable this season. Hugh McDine, who handled the stable last year, is now serving in the Canadian Active Army as a telegrapher.

Horses in the stable are Aby os, Wildeer, Maratimer and Ebony Ship. Jo Johansen, well-known Calgary trainer, has one newcomer in his nine-horse string. It is Single Claim, an eastern bred colt, which won two races last season. S. T. Knifong, brother of L. R. Knifong, well known on the western circuit, is coming from Bay Meadows with Carbine Man and Lady Bargello.

Another Jockey In Longden Home

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Hazel Longden, 19-year-old wife of jockey Johnny Longden who rode Count Fleet to victory in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday, gave birth to a nine-pound, nine-ounce boy in hospital here late yesterday but her husband just missed greeting the new arrival.

Twenty-five minutes before his son was born, the Taber, Alta., rider had to catch a train for Baltimore where he will ride the Count in the Preakness Saturday.

Mother and son are doing fine, the hospital reported.

Canadian Senior Hoop Playoffs Resume Tonight

VANCOUVER, May 7.—(CP)—Second games of the Canadian Senior Basketball finals—men and women—will be played in this hotbed of the game tonight. Both call for three-of-five-game series.

In opening games Wednesday, Victoria R.C.A.F. whipped Windsor Patricks 58-48 in the men's series and Vancouver made it 36-17 in the women's.

Windsor's big job now is to try to smother AC1. Norm Baker who posted an individual record for senior men's basketball floors when he scored 37 points in the first game. Baker, three-year man with Victoria, tossed 15 points in the fourth quarter and enabled the British Columbia champions to wipe out the Ontario team's five-point lead and build up a 10-point margin. The former Vancouver record in one game was 27 points.

Hedlunds, defending Dominion champions, had things pretty much their own way in the opening contest. They took a first-period 14-4 lead, made it 21-8 at half time and went into the final quarter with a 26-13 margin.

Third games of the series will be played Saturday and if further games are necessary they will be played Monday and Tuesday.

For Saturday's Preakness

Horsemen Trying to Find Way to Beat Count Fleet

By SID FEDER

BALTIMORE, May 7—(AP)—The horsemen's chapter of the "Let's Try Anything Once" Society came up Thursday with a take off on the old "you-hold-him-while-I-hit-him" technique as the one way left by which Count Fleet might possibly be beaten in the Preakness Saturday.

Now, this is not to imply that Maryland's pride, W. L. Brann's Vincentive, and Allen Simmons' Akron-owned Blue Swords are planning to gang up on the Count. And, certainly, the latest possibility for Saturday's starting field, R. L. Hall's Partido, shouldn't be planning anything rash.

Johnny Longden

Now, say the wise-guys, since nothing else has worked, why not have one of the other gallopers in Saturday's scramble "hook" the Count and at least try to run with him, instead of letting him off by himself.

However, the same smarties give you the argument right back that if one of the Count's challengers should try that neat little trick come Saturday, he may be setting the pot up for the other fellow to take home. For, they argue, the Count isn't going to let another guy take the lead from him without a fight, and it's possible he and, say, Vincentive might put up such a tough tussle in the early running that they'd kill each other off. In which case Blue Swords might come bouncing home. This would be quite a bounce, because if four horses start the winning pot would be $44,555 for him. For the Count, who paid $1,500 as a supplementary nominee, the pay-check will be $43,190.

Harvard Will Discontinue All Intercollegiate Football

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 7—(AP)—Harvard, which has lost head coach Dick Harlow, most of his ranking gridiron aides and athletic director William J. Bingham to the armed services, yesterday announced the suspension of intercollegiate football for the duration.

This decision was made public by Carroll F. Getchell, who has taken over Bingham's duties. Getchell explained that the discontinuance was determined by reduction in the number of undergraduates available for sports the heavy war demands upon the University's facilities, the training programs of its large army and navy units and the accelerated academic schedules.

Getchell said that Harvard would continue intramural football next fall and had hopes of arranging games with neighboring teams as the season developed.

Getchell added that Harvard has asked all of its 1943 opponents: Columbia, William and Mary, Dartmouth, Army, Holy Cross, Princeton, Brown and Yale, to eliminate it from their football schedules.

OTHERS TO CONTINUE

The immediate reactions from other members of the famous "Big Three' idicated that Harvard's example would not be followed.

"Sorry over the action," commented Howard Odell, Eli football coach, "but it won't affect us at all. We don't expect any trouble filling the date."

At Princeton, acting director of athletics, Asa Bushnell said: "Plans for continuing football at Princeton have not been abandoned and no abandonment is contemplated at this time."

NO FINAL DECISION

W. H. McCarter, director of athletics at Dartmouth, said: "At Dartmouth there is not sufficient detailed information upon which to base a final decision but we are hopeful of maintaining madified schedules in all sports, especially with other institutions having V-12 (Naval College Training Program) units."

In announcing the discontinuance, C. F. Getchell, acting manager of the Harvard Athletic association, said its policy was determined by reduction in undergraduates available to participate in sports; heavy demands for use of the university's facilities for war training programs by the army and navy (nearly 4,000 are already in training at Harvard under such programs), and repeated requests of the office of defence transportation to curtail all travel not necessary for the promotion of the war effort.

Longden Again to Ride Count Fleet

BALTIMORE, May 7.—(AP)—The jockey lineup for Saturday's Preakness stakes was set Thursday, as far as the three definite starters are concerned, when trainer Walter Kelley announced that Johnny Adams, the pudgy little Kansan, would have the mount on Blue Swords.

As usual, Johnny Longden will handle Count Fleet, and Georgie (the Iceman) Woolf, the contract rider for the W. L. Brann stable, will pilot Brann's Vincentive. Both Longden and Woolf are from Alberta, Longden from Taber and Woolf from Cardston.

Adams rode Blue Swords to second place in the Derby behind Count Fleet a week ago, but it wasn't known until yesterday whether Kelley would bring him up from Kentucky for Saturday's scuffle.

Carrasquel Turns In Surprise Wins For Washington

CHICAGO, May 7.—(AP)—A lot of pitching surprises, as well as surprising pitchers, have sprouted this spring in the major leagues, but none has been any more amazing than young (?) man from Caracas, Senor Alejandro Carrasquel of Washington Senators.

The big Venezuelan is listed in the record books as 29 years old, 30 next July, but in appearance he looks to be anywhere between 30 and 40 and his team mates say there is no telling exactly how old he really is.

Anyway, he has been with Washington for four years prior to this season without ever winning more than seven games. He reached this nominal peak last year, when he also lost seven.

In the face of this undistinguished precedent big Alex has opened the 1943 campaign by whipping Philadelphia Athletics three times to take his place among a select group of hurlers who have won three games without a defeat.

Wednesday he beat them again 8-1 on four hits and the only run against him came on an error in the ninth. Unfortunately Carrasquel can't keep pitching against the Athletics all season, but he already has accumulated almost half his total wins of a year ago and has had a lot to do with keeping the Senators sailing along in third place in the American League.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE RAZOR BLADE SITUATION

A Frank Statement By
Gillette Safety Razor Co. of Canada, Limited

CONFLICTING and unfounded reports about the razor blade situation prompt us to make this positive statement:—

There should be razor blades for everybody provided everyone buys sparingly and gets every possible shave out of every blade.

It is true that today manufacture of razor blades for civilian use is regulated. No loyal Canadian would have it otherwise. And this company gladly complies with the program established by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board Administrator to conserve steel and labor.

The quota set up by the Administrator was arrived at after careful study, and the available supply of razor blades is intended to take care of civilian needs without working a hardship on anyone.

Despite this you may have found an occasional merchant out of stock when you asked for Blue Gillette Blades. Here are the reasons for this . . . First . . . the Blue Gillette has grown in popularity year after year and today demand is greater than ever. Second . . . some men are boarding. Storing away even an extra package or two by every shaver in the Dominion could cause an acute shortage. Third . . . many men continue their peacetime practice of not concerning themselves with the number of shaves per blade. These days demand that men obtain maximum service from each blade. Fourth . . . Large orders from the armed forces tax our capacity. These requirements do not come out of our civilian quota, but do take priority on delivery.

Combine these four reasons and you know why from time to time certain dealers may be out of stock. We assure you that this condition is only temporary and should mean at worst merely a brief delay.

But you can help avoid this slight inconvenience. When buying Blue Gillette Blades . . . do so sparingly . . . just one package at a time. Then use each blade thriftily . . . make every blade deliver the maximum number of satisfactory shaves. And when you key your blade consumption to the times, you share the comfort and economy of Blue Gillette Blades with your friends and your neighbours. That's the sporting thing to do. It's the Canadian way.

Yankees Take Both Ends of Doubleheader From Red Sox

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—New York Yankees put Boston Red Sox through a wringer twice yesterday, squeezing out victories in both ends of a doubleheader 2-1 and 5-4 to complete a sweep of their four-game American League series.

The first fray was a pitching battle between big Ernie Bonham of the Yankees and Lefty Oscar Judd of the Sox. Each gave nine hits but Charley Keller exploded a 400-foot triple in the seventh inning and scored on a fly by Joe Gordon to decide the duel in Bonham's favor. It was the third victory without a defeat for the husky righthander.

The second session was an odd orgy that resulted in Johnny (Grandma) Murphy, New York's star relief pitcher, obtaining his fourth triumph and Mace Brown, Boston's relief specialist, absorbing his fourth defeat.

It was Boston's 10th defeat in 14 games and fifth straight.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7—(AP)—Philadelphia Athletics mauled two Washington pitchers for 11 well-placed hits Thursday and walloped the Senators 7-0.

Roger Wolff became the first A's pitcher of the season to hurl a shutout. He allowed 10 hits. It was his third victory this year.

An error, two walks and an infield single gave the Athletics two runs off Ewald Pyle in the first inning, and Bob Swift's long double opened another two-run attack in the second.

Pete Suder tripled with three aboard in the fourth, when Philadelphia scored three times against Owen Scheetz.

CLEVELAND, May 7—(AP)—Five Chicago White Sox hurlers paraded before Cleveland Indians yesterday and were hammered for 12 hits as the tribe took a 6-3 victory to end the American League series.

Southpaw Al Smith, 34-year-old Indian veteran, yielded 11 hits to the Sox, but kept them scattered and ineffective.

Cleveland's triumph was built on two big innings, the third and seventh, with three runs collected in each.

BROWNS BREAK TIGER JINX

ST. LOUIS, May 7—(AP)—St. Louis Browns broke the Detroit Jinx yesterday, pushing over a run in the ninth to beat the Tigers 1-0 for the first time in five games this season.

Left-handed Hal Newhouser and Denny Galehouse matched each other in effectiveness throughout the game and not a man reached third until the ninth when the Tigers had a chance to win.

Rudy York doubled and Pinky Higgins sacrificed him to third. Don Gutteridge tossed out Rip Radcliffe while York held the base. Jim Bloodworth then flied to Mike Kreevich.

George McQuinn tripled after Stephens flied out to open the Browns' ninth. Manager Luke Sewell sent in light hitting Don Heffner to bat for Mike Chartak. Heffner bunted to Newhouser and McQuinn streaked home ahead of the pitcher's throw for the winning run.

TORONTO, May 7—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs hammered out 14 solid safeties to open their International league home season with a 12-3 triumph over Syracuse Chiefs Thursday. A paid attendance of slightly over 10,000 augmented by a couple of thousand servicemen, watched Dick Conger tighten after a shaky start, to keep Toronto on top of the league with a seven-hit performance.

ROYALS LOSE AT HOME

MONTREAL, May 7—(CP)—Baltimore Birds spoiled the Royals' International League opening here yesterday by squeezing out a win with a two-run rally in the ninth inning to beat the Royals, 2-1.

Royals scored a run in the seventh when Flowers' line single off Monaco's glove scored Howell.

In the Birds' half of the ninth, Flowers then caused his own downfall by walking Repass to start the inning. When he threw two balls in succession to Selling, manager Fresco Thompson sent in Collins to relieve him. Collins walked Selling. McGarrity batted for Pare and walked to fill the bases. When Sczepkowski walked, forcing in the tying run and Al Sherer came in to relieve Collins.

Joe Becker batted for Van Slate and lined a single ot centre, chasing Staller across the plate with the clincher.

TORONTO, May 7.—(CP)—Canadians have a double interest in Count Fleet, the Kentucky Derby winner. The great thoroughbred's jockey is Johnny Longden, who came out of Taber, Alta., and got his racing start on Western Canada tracks. But it's not so generally known that Count Fleet's trainer, Don Cameron, was born in Winnipeg.

Cameron's father also was a well-known trainer. Don is a nephew of the late W. M. (Billy) Graham, former agent for the Department of Indian Affairs at Regina.

Longden was the second Alberta rider to win the Kentucky classic. Smokey Saunders of Calgary piloted Omaha to victory in 1935. Another Canadian jockey who once had a crack at the Derby, Johnny Craigmyle, has reconsidered his decision to retire, announced after the won the Canadian Derby at Winnipeg aboard Maginot Line last year. Craigmyle couldn't stand to remain a spectator when the ponies started running so decided to try his luck at California's Bay Meadows. Craigmyle finished 11th in the 1928 Kentucky Derby on Sun Beau, and the winner of that race was Reigh Count, daddy of Count Fleet.

EGAN EGAD!

Pat Egan, the former Brooklyn Howitzer, is leading the Valleyfield army team in the Quebec Senior Lacrosse Group this year. Egan played last season in Vancouver and Johnny (Vancouver Province) Park comments "East-Lacrosse is due to be 'Needled' this season."

INCIDENTALLY:

Preparing for the Alberta Derby, Scotty Kennedy's 37-cent Omar's Gift worked three-eights in 36 seconds flat, fastest ever clocked on a three-year-old at Winnipeg's Whittich Park. Scotty bought the horse last year from R. J. Speers of Winnipeg for just what money he had in his pocket—37 cents.

It seems Victoria shot its bolt in hockey for some time when it sent the Army team into the Allan Cup final against Ottawa Commandos. Coast reports say the Victoria rink is the taken over by the Defence Department and that there will be no hockey in Victoria next winter. Meantime, Vancouver understands its Forum rink, used by the armed forces the past year, will be available for hockey again next season. Probably Nanaimo will re-enter the mainland league with Vancouver and New Westminster.

Major Leagues Expect Low Hit Games to Continue

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK, May 7—(BUP)—Dead ball or not, the American League figures to have one of its greatest pitching seasons this year, better perhaps than 1942's stellar campaign . . . of 40 top hitters, 19—including such sluggers as Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Walt Judnich, Les Fleming and Glenn McQuillen—will be out of action. In the first 10 days of this season, 17 games were played in the league with five or less hits.

Last year in the first 10 days, the league had 12 low-hit games. The league had nine shutouts in 11 days of '42, and in the first 14 days of '43 there were 10. The first 42 games last season produced 267 runs to 355 for the same number this year.

The Detroit District Golf association, seeking to solve the labor problem in upkeep of golf courses in its area, has suggested to the U.S. employment office in Detroit that disabled war veterans be used on the courses. This would enable the vets to be employed in the fresh air and sunshine while getting the job done without taking men away from essential industries.

SWIMMING MEET

The University of Texas swimming team and Jane Dillard of San Antonio, Tex.—women's 100-yard breast stroke champion will compete in Mexico City this weekend. They received their international permit from the A.A.U. Wednesday.

Ford Frick, president of the National League believes that attendance in the majors this season will be close to normal or at least not off more than 10 per cent despite the fact that the army has taken a large portion of the better fans—men between 18 and 25.

Bob Montgomery, who challenges champion Beau Jack for the lightweight title on May 21, has fought five over-the-weight matches with previous lightweight titleholders while they wore their crowns. He met Sammy Angott three times and Lew Jenkins twice.

IMPORTANT BOUT

Lieutenant Benny Leonard has gone to Montreal to referee Saturday's important lightweight bout between Private Johnny Greco of the Canadian Army and Terry Young of New York. If Greco beats Young, he may be matched with Henry Armstrong at the New York Polo Grounds on June 11.

Rookie Dee Moore, who is catching for the Dodgers during the absence of Mickey Owen because of illness, pitched a no-hit ball game for Macon of the Sally League against Columbit, Ga., in 1936.

Kewpie Barrett of the Cubs and Bobby Coombs of the Giants, who had the lowest earned-run averages last season in the Pacific Coast and International Leagues, respectively, were rookies 10 years ago together under Connie Mack on the Athletics.

Goldy Ahearn, boxing promoter at the Uline Arena and Griffith Stadium in Washington, D.C., plans to use only big-name boxers in the future—such as Bivins, Angott, Armstrong and so forth, following last Friday night's successful Armstrong-Turiello show, which grossed more than $19,000.

No Racing at Whittier Park

WINNIPEG, May 7.—(CP)—Racing fans in Winnipeg this season will see their favorites run on one track—at Polo Park—instead of two, it was announced yesterday.

The jockey clubs of Winnipeg, in co-operation with the Federal Government's plan for conservation of gasoline and rubber, have decided to use only Polo Park, home of the Winnipeg Jockey Club.

Whittier Park, operated by the Manitoba Jockey Club in St. Boniface, across the river from Winnipeg, will be closed

Dave Castilloux To Fight May 31

MONTREAL, May 7.—(CP)—Dave Castilloux, Canadian lightweight and welterweight champion, will return to the ring wars May 31 in the main bout on an R.C.A.F. benefit card at Quebec, it was announced yesterday. No opponent has been named as yet.

Castilloux will also appear in a main 10-round bout at Toronto June 15, manager Raoul Godbout said. An attempt is being made to get Henry Armstrong, former world triple-crown holder, as an opponent for the Toronto show.

Castilloux has appeared in two service benefits since joining the R.C.A.F., defeating Al Lust of Calgary each time.

Stormy Debate Seen

Billion Dollar Aid Plan Supported in Principle By All Parties in House

By C. R. BLACKBURN

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Spokesmen for all parties in the House of Commons yesterday approved in principle Finance Minister Ilsley's request for an appropriation of $1,000,000,000 to provide war supplies as a direct contribution to the joint effort of the United Nations to defeat the Axis powers.

Only essential consideration required in the proposed appropriation bill is that the supplies will be used for the joint and effective prosecution of the war, but if remuneration is available it will be a part of the agreement of transfer of supplies, Mr. Ilsley said.

He said the proposal was similar to but simpler than the United States lease-lend plan and the conditions under which other United nations provide mutual aid.

PAYMENT INCIDENTAL

It was a further step in the Canadian government's policy, adopted early in the war, that the Dominion's surplus of war supplies must go where they will do the most good regardless of whether the recipients are in a position to pay for them in cash or kind.

Joseph Harris (Prog. Con. Toronto Danforth); M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and Victor Quelch (N.D. Acadia), speaking for their respective parties, endorsed the proposal.

But the resolution is only in its first stages and there were indications that the measure may be subject of long and stormy debate on details.

Both Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Quelch demanded that all the Canadian securities still remaining in British hands be repatriated, Mr. Coldwell making particular reference to Canadian Pacific Railway stocks and bonds which he estimated to be held in Britain to the extent of about $500,000,000.

AGAINST "ANY STRINGS"

Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) former Conservative house leader, endorsed the principle of the resolution but declared there should be no strings of any kind attached to the gift. But he opposed the suggestion that all remaining British-held Canadian securities be repatriated.

During the preliminary proceedings Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave notice that a considerable number of amending government bills would be introduced before the session ends.

Whether or not there would be legislation on health insurance, social security and other matters referred to committees would depend upon the recommendations made by these committees, he said.

In his motion that the house consider in committee his preliminary resolution for the $1,000,000,000 mutual aid appropriation, Mr. Ilsley outlined the government's purpose, as he did some months ago when the proposal was announced.

OUTLINES POLICY

He said the government's policy was:

1—Surplus Canadian war supplies including farm products and raw materials) should be made available to United Nations whether they could pay for them or not.

2—Direct reciprocal arrangements for return in kind or return of unused equipment may be made but "good and sufficient consideration" for transferring war supplies to United Nations will be that such supplies are to be used "in the joint and effective prosecution of the war."

3—That the government desires to avoid "piling up huge war debts" to Canada by the United Nations and that the conditions under which supplies are transferred shall be clearly defined at time of transfer.

4—Canada proposes to deal directly with the various countries requiring mutual aid and not to provide such aid to one country through the agency of another.

SPEND MONEY AT HOME

Mr. Ilsley said the appropriation did not mean that Canadian money would go abroad. The money would be spent among Canadian producers.

He recalled the steps taken since early in the war when Canadian munitions and supplies went direct to Britain and that country quickly exhausted its supply of Canadian funds with which to pay.

All but about $700,000,000 worth of Canadian securities held in Britain had been repatriated as a means of providing Britain with Canadian dollars.

Last year an outright gift of $1,000,000,000 in kind had been made by parliament and some $700,000,000 of British debt to Canada had been cared for by a long-term loan without interest during the war.

The supply of Canadian dollars in Britain had been further augmented by the huge costs of maintaining Canadian forces overseas, and a further help was the recent purchase by Canada of the $200,000,000 British war investment in Canadian munitions plants.

DIFFICULTIES REMAIN

But the difficulty of sterling countries paying for Canadian products still remained and the present proposal was merely a further stage of the government's program to ensure that provision of munitions and supplies from Canada for the joint Allied cause would not be interrupted by the lack of purchasing power.

He said it would be harsh and short-sighted to force Britain to liquidate all the Canadian securities held in Britain after the heavy liquidations, more than half of the pre-war total, that had already taken place.

"Our Allies do not charge us for the vital assistance that their forces render to Canada in battling against our enemies overseas," he said.

Mr. Harris urged a policy that would bring blitz wrecked British businesses to Canada.

If the proposed appropriation was not enough, Mr. Harris urged that it be increased and that no unavoidable limit be placed on the aid Canada gives her allies.

"UNHESITATING SUPPORT"

Mr. Coldwell said the proposal had the "unhesitating support" of his group but he did not agree with the minister that all remaining Canadian securities in Britain should not be repatriated.

It might be hard on some British investors but need not embarrass relations with Britain itself.

Both Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Harris urged the minister to make some statement concerning reports that Canadian supplies sent to Britain as a gift last year had been re-sold to other allies.

When Mr. Coldwell urged the liquidation of all British holdings in Canada, Mr. Ilsley suggested he was taking the stand that "England's extremity is Canada's opportunity," but Mr. Coldwell denied this.

"I have as much love for Britain as anyone in this house," he said, "but we are not helping Britain by leaving these securities there. We are helping a small group of financiers and capitalists."

OPPOSITION FLARES UP AMONG QUEBEC MEMBERS

OTTAWA, May 7. — (CP) — Criticism of the government's proposed $1,000,000,000 appropriation for mutual aid to the United Nations flared up last night in the House of Commons among Quebec members and resulted in a division over a proposal to raise the money by compulsory loans from individual companies.

J. F. Pouliot (Lib., Temiscouata) attacked the appropriation as a poor business proposition, after spokesmen for all parties had warmly supported the principle of the contribution.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin (Lib., Richelieu-Vercheres) opposed what he described as continuation of "colonial tribute" to Britain and declared Canada was already doing more in proportion to population that other Allies.

OBTAINED FROM FIRMS

Frederic Dorion (Ind., Charlevoix-Saguenay) argued that the taxes and lendings obtained from the people should not be used for this purpose but that it should be obtained from the big companies.

His amendment, moved after the house had gone into committee on the resolution, was ruled out of order by the chairman, Deputy Speaker Bradette. His ruling was challenged and a division of the house was forced by Mr. Dorion.

J. S. Roy (Ind., Gaspe), Emmanuel D'Anjou (Lib., Rimouski), Liguori Lacombe (CDN, Laval, Two Mountains) and Mr. Pouliot.

The chairman's ruling was upheld by a vote of 88 to five, those voting against being the five who forced the division.

At 11 o'clock adjournment last night the house had put through the preliminary resolution and given first reading to the bill.

When Prime Minister Winston Churchill spoke in the Canadian house a year ago he had made no mention of financial assistance given by Canada, nor had Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, speaking here this year, said Mr. Pouliot.

"Our effort should be appreciated in England, and we should ask for something in return," he said.

"Why not ask Britain to transfer her rights to Jamaica, Nassau, Newfoundland to Canada?"

EFFORT APPRECIATED

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, said he believed everyone in the British Isles knew and appreciated what Canada had done.

The airmen who fought over Britain in 1940 fought not only for the people of Britain, "but for all of us."

It was "inappropriate" talk of balancing accounts or making a bargain with those united with Canada in the struggle.

The only limitation on Canadian aid should be the limit of her capacity.

The Progressive Conservative party supported the principle of the resolution.

More detailed information should be given on the mutual aid proposal. The house should have an idea of how the Canadian products being given out were distributed.

"We shall insist on every dollar of this money being spent efficiently and without waste," said Mr. Graydon.

Mr. Cardin said since the war started he had felt not one step forward in Canadian independence had been made.

There seemed to be an argument by some that Canada had not done her proper share in the war and should give more than the gifts which had been given.

This attitude meant a forgetting of the hundreds of thousands of Canadian soldiers and a Canadian budget of more than $5,000,000,000.

HEAVIEST TAXES

British leaders had been surprised at the Canadian contribution. Newspapers had established that Canada was more heavily taxed than any other country in the war.

The proposed legislation was a "gift" and nothing else, said Mr. Cardin, as the $1,000,000,000 given Britain last year was an outright gift.

Mr. Cardin said he could not conceive that the government of Canada could be prevented by censorship from giving details of how last year's $1,000,000,000 gift to Britain was distributed and commented on Mr. Ilsley's statement earlier in the debate that this was true.

The censorship board was composed of government employees and he could not believe, Mr. Cardin said, that such a body could prevent the government doing what the United States government did in great detail.

He said he could not understand why, while Canada was giving supplies to Britain, it would be unfair to ask British shareholders to sell back to Canada their bonds and stocks in Canadian properties.

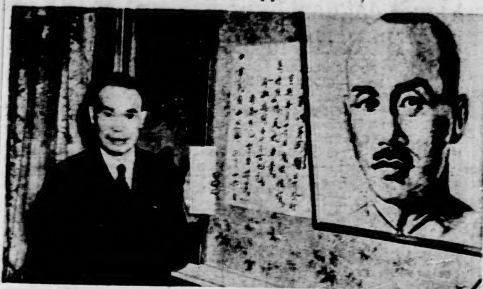
OTHERS REPATRIATED

India and South Africa had repatriated all their securities held in Britain and had not been accused of lack of patriotism. And when Indian soldiers went outside their own country they were paid and maintained by Britain.

Mr. Cardin said he did not sympathize with the concern expressed by Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) earlier in the debate over the fact that Canadians have not yet been in action. He said he did not want to see Canadians sacrificed as a spearhead of an Allied attack. The longer such action was delayed the better, he added.

"Don't want to pay and don't want to fight," Mr. Hanson murmured as Mr. Cardin took his seat, and the house went into committee of the whole on the resolution.

Chinese Residents Support Victory Loan



Chinese in Edmonton have responded well to the Fourth Victory Loan appeal with canvassers reporting that sales are easy to effect. Prior to the campaign all Chinese in Edmonton were circularized in the native language on the importance of supporting the loan. Here is Lee Foo Yuen, 60-year-old cafe worker and janitor of the Chinese Benevolent Association's offices, receiving his $50 Victory bond. On the wall is a copy of the circular, in poster form, that was sent to the Chinese in the city, urging them to support the Fourth Victory Loan and expressing confidence in victory. Also on the wall is a portrait of General Chiang Kai shek.

Don't "WHITTLE" Corns

Painful home-paring may leave core in your toe!

It's just good common sense to realize that the core of a corn left in your toe may act as a focal point for renewed development. Medicated Blue-Jay, on the other hand, not only helps relieve the pain, but gets after the core — helps remove the corn. And it works while you walk in comfort! Blue-Jay costs only a few cents for each corn. Get it today at any drug or toilet goods counter.

Home paring or "whittling" corns removes only the top—leaves core (A) in toe.

But Blue-Jay medication loosens core so it may be easily removed.*

Strong International Rule in Europe After War Urged

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

Red tape in the armed forces is a subject dealt with in a highly entertaining manner in this week's issue of the magazine Time.

It seems that many officers in the U.S. fighting services are just about ready to jump off the dock because of the endless flood of typed and mimeographed orders that threatens to bury the whole war effort beneath an avalanche of official nonsense.

Many generals have issued orders that paper work should not be allowed to interfere with training, but like the weather, everybody talks about it but no one does anything about it.

Exasperated Lt.-Col. Francis E. Gillette has written a few recommendations which are as follows:

Magistrate to Magistrate

H. HAWE, K.C.

A. I. MILLAR, K.C.

A unique ceremony took place in Edmonton city police court Thursday afternoon, when Magistrate Alexander I. Millar, K.C., senior magistrate here, presented white gloves to Magistrate Harold Hawe, K.C., junior member of the police court bench. The gloves were presented because of a clear docket in R.C.M.P. traffic court on the afternoon of April 1 last. Magistrate Hawe actually received two pair of gloves. When he was handed the first pair he didn't look too pleased. They were white canvas gardener's gloves, but the second pair were fine dress gloves of snowy white. An appropriate speech was made by Magistrate Millar prior to the presentation. Magistrate Hawe sat on the bench. Present in court were: Clerk of the city police court Verne Whittaker, Court Orderly Sergeant Reginald Jennings, Cpl. James Muir, R.C.M.P., and Constable Jack Cookson, representing the Edmonton city police department.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the proposal to increase license fees for "Juke boxes" to $5?

THE ANSWERS

HARRY HORTON, carpenter: I guess the operators of these music vending machines can well afford to pay that fee. The one dollar fee was too small. Some regulation should be made to control the volume of sound and also to place a deadline on the time of operation at night.

PERCY JENKINS, clerk: Five dollars would appear to be a reasonable fee for these "boxes" where they are utilized in restaurants. The fee for their use in cabarets and dance halls should be considerably higher.

WILLIAM PERCIVAL, gardener: I think the fee should be of a character that would protect the public against these nuisances. In some of the places the noise is terrible and can be heard for several blocks. In these cases the operators should be prosecuted.

Distinguished British M.P. Says Allies Must Prepare To Aid in Reconstruction

Creation of an international force to police Europe in the post-war period of reconstruction in which Canada, the United States and Britain would be the leading nations was suggested by Vernon Bartlett, British M.P. and diplomatic advisor to the London News-Chronicle, in an address Thursday to Rotary club members at a luncheon meeting at the Macdonald Hotel.

He said that Canada, Britain and the United States must be prepared to supply food, materials, livestock and to assist in the reconstruction of Europe. There would have to be lease-lend plans from these countries for many years following the conflict's termination, he added.

A form of international government would have to be devised backed by an international police force, mobile and effective, to maintain order and prevent chaos which might develop from the famine and disease that will follow the cessation of hostilities in Europe

RESTS WITH PEOPLE

He said it was the duty of the peoples of the democracies to determine that the post-war world would be different from that preceding the war, but this could not be accomplished unless the peoples of the democracies were prepared to accept the responsibilities and obligations imposed by democracy

Mr. Bartlett also addressed a meeting of the Institute of International Affairs Thursday evening, and on Friday will fly to Whitehorse for an inspection tour of the Alaska Highway

Paying tribute to Canada's war effort Mr. Bartlett said it was marvelous that so much had been achieved without the aid of bombs. Bombs, disagreeable as they are, make you think, and in Britain, while they have spread terrible destruction to property,

Women of Edmonton!

Through the generosity of Edmonton Businessmen and the co-operation of the Citizens' Volunteer Bureau—the women of Edmonton will have an opportunity to participate in "LADIES' WEEK"—a mass campaign to be launched next Monday.

A neighborhood block leader will call at your home. This visitor is your neighbor—working for the satisfaction of knowing that through her efforts, she is backing up our fighting sons.

She is a member of the Citizens' Volunteer Bureau. She will not attempt to sell you bonds. She merely invites you to discuss with her the problem of national war finance. She'll attempt to answer any question on Victory Bonds that you may ask. Please accept her willingly and discuss your problems frankly.

They are leaving no stone unturned to give every householder in Edmonton an opportunity to become a bondholder.

Through the generosity of Edmonton Businessmen—a minimum of $1200 in bonds will be given to lady bond purchasers and their partners. Every lady purchaser, regardless of when the bond was bought, is eligible for these prizes.

Each lady who buys a bond may nominate as her partner, any man or woman in the armed services of the United Nations—here or abroad.

If the lady's ticket is drawn—her partner automatically wins a $50 bond also.

Those ladies of Edmonton who made purchases before the contest was announced, please note:

If the purchase was made through the bank, please call at the bank at which you made the purchase and pick up your ticket. If you made your purchase at Victory Loan Headquarters—call there. If the bond was bought through a salesman—call at Victory Loan Headquarters. If your purchase was made through your firm—call on your employer.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Marriage Won't Change Lazy Man to Go-Getter

Many Women With Reform Mania Marry Helpless Males But They Seldom Get the Desired Result; It Is Unkind to Marry Man Without Love

DEAR MISS DIX: We have a 19-year-old daughter who has a boy friend two years younger than she is who wants to marry her. He is not even a high school graduate, is not working steady, and his whole ambition seems to be expended in trying to be near her as much as possible. We are wondering just what our duty is to our daughter. We have tried to counsel and warn her, but she is so much in love that she will not see how disastrous such a marriage would be to her. She believes that she can help the boy overcome his weak points by marrying him.

We are naturally ambitious for our daughter to go to college and she also wants to get an education.

PERPLEXED PARENTS.

Answer: About the only thing you can do to save your daughter is to play for time. In another year, perhaps sooner, the boy will be called to the army, and if you can keep her from marrying him until after the duration, your problem will automatically settle itself. For if the army develops him into a worthwhile man, you will have no objection to the match. And if it leaves him still a poor, lovesick weakling, your daughter will not want to marry him, for by that time what with her better education and college experience, she will have outgrown her fancy for him.

Doubtless you have already pointed out to your daughter the folly of marrying a boy who has no way of making a living and who couldn't feed a canary bird, much less a wife. Nor is your daughter prepared to support a husband, so you might well ask her what they are going to use for money, and make it very clear to her that she can't bring him home for you to take care of.

That should give any girl, no matter how besottedly in love she is, a jolt that would make her stop and think a little. Many foolish marriages would be blocked if parents would stand firm on the you've-got-to-stand-on-your-own-feet-and-support-your-own-family-when-you-marry platform when their children want to marry before they have a dollar in their pockets.

The trouble about your daughter is that she is the victim of the reform mania that so many women have, and that she is smitten with the idea that she can make a man out of this boy by marrying him. She is more in love with that idea than she is with the boy himself. Millions of other women have married clinging, helpless, good-for-nothings for the same reason, but none of them ever made a success of the job.

For no woman can transfer her own backbone into a spineless man. She can't turn a lazy man into a go-getter, nor give initiative to one whose only ambition is to sit on the do-nothing stool. All he does is to break the girl's heart and ruin her life.

IS ENGAGED

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been engaged for a year to a boy who is now in the service in Africa. In the meantime I have fallen in love with someone else. Should I return the engagement ring to the boy in Africa and tell him that I am in love with this other boy? Or is it wiser to wait until after the war?

A BEWILDERED GIRL.

Answer: If you are engaged to the other man and expect to marry him, it is certainly nothing but common honesty to return the ring to the boy in Africa and tell him how matters stand.

No doubt it will be a great shock to him and cause him many a heartache, but it will be kinder to get it over with at once than it will be to let him go on nursing a dream and planning for the home he is going to make with you, and then to find out that you have been faithless to him and deceiving him all the time.

Moreover, in the shock of war, with the excitement and danger and death staring him continually in the face, he will not have much time to brood over a wrecked romance.

But before you break with your old love be very sure you are on with the new. You certainly could not have loved the first man very much if you forget him so quickly. Be more certain of your feelings towards Number 2.

Don't feel that you are doing a cruel thing in breaking with the chap in Africa and that you are in duty bound to go on and marry him because he is fighting for his country. The unkindest thing that any woman ever does is to marry a man after she has ceased to love him.

HAS A BABY

Dear Miss Nix: During the latter part of last year I had a baby born out of wedlock. Because at the time I was a minor I signed it over for adoption. My mother also had to sign a paper similar to mine. I understand someone has adopted the baby and I want to know if there is any possible chance of my getting him back. I am heartbroken over losing him and it is affecting my health.

At the time I didn't want to give the baby up, but did so to avoid scandalizing the whole family. I did not want to hurt my younger brothers and sisters. I am of age and working now and could support the child. If I regain him, I intend to move out of my home into a place of my own so that he won't harm anyone. What proceedings should I take?

TERRY L.

Answer: You will have to consult some good lawyer and have him take the steps necessary to try to recover the child, but I think you will find it very difficult to do it.

If your child has been adopted by reputable people, who are giving him a good home and affection and advantages that you would not be able to give him, consider a long time before you take him away from them. You will find it very hard to make enough money to support yourself and give him the care and food he needs, for babies are expensive propositions and unmarried women with them find many doors of opportunity shut in their faces. Also, you know that an adopted child takes on the status of its foster parents, whereas the child of an unwed mother suffers always from the handicap of being Miss Sally's or Miss Susie's boy and having his birth flung in his face.

Of course, one understands the mother love that makes you willing to sacrifice everything to have your child back with you, and in time people do forget old scandals and many a nameless boy makes a name for himself in the world. However, the woman who defies the conventions pays a high price for her folly.

My Day

BY

ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON—Like everybody else in the country, I am deeply concerned about the possibility of a coal strike. I know only too well the difficulties under which the miners have worked and lived. I realize that by the end of the week, many a miner owes the company store almost more than he has earned, and, in the past, company store prices have been higher in many places than the prices in other nearby neighborhoods.

I think it is essential that these men be protected not only from the general rise in the cost of living, but from the abuses which company stores and company towns have brought about for many years. Mine owners have a right to make, not only a reasonable return on their investment, but since, for a long time many mines have not been able to work, there are probably some legitimate charges which should be covered now that they are open again. The government should see that there is a fair deal for both owners and miners.

The right to strike is a right which men should never be forced to give up, but which in the face of grave national emergency they may give up voluntarily. The boys who need the things which will be lacking in case the mines close, are boys that come, many of them, from the homes of the miners.

They will be the sufferers and I do not think the men in question quite understand that what they should demand is that their government protect them. But not for a minute should they allow themselves to be led in keeping the materials of war away from their sons.

We had the most wonderful flight back from the west coast. Just a few bumpy spots, but outside of that we sailed along with a tail wind and had to wait an hour and a half in one airport, because we were that much ahead of time.

Arriving home yesterday, I found myself engulfed in all the little things which make me wonder how life ever progresses in a household when one is not at home.

Finally, I left my desk long enough to get ready for dinner. We had a nice leisurely, family meal and told each other all the things we had seen and observed from the time we separated until we met again last night.

I thought I would get to bed early, having spent a night and most of a day on a plane, but people kept coming in to talk to me, and I found so much writing to do, that it was well on toward 1 a.m. before I finally went to bed.

I have several appointments today with people who have been very patient and waited a long time to see me about their various interests. At 5 o'clock I am going to an exhibition for Russian war relief.

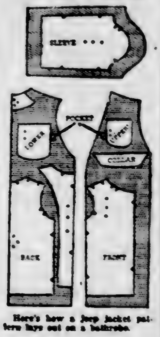
Old Bathrobe Makes a New Jeep Jacket

Ingenious Makeover Pattern Helps Home "Salvage" Campaign

Little trace of the moth-eaten old bathrobe sketched above is discernable in the attractive, highly practical jeep jacket seen in the photo at left. Yet the jacket was made from the robe without any trouble at all, through the use of an ingenious "Make 'Em Last" makeover pattern.



Here's how a jeep jacket pattern lays out on a bathrobe.

Want a nice, warm all-wool jeep jacket for active spring days when there may be a bit of winter's chill lingering in the air, especially after "that evenin' sun goes down"? It's easy. Just poke around in dad's or brother's clothes closet and find that old bathrobe that surely must be there. Maybe it's like the one used for the jeep jacket pictured above.

This one had an objectionable checked collar, the moths had had several snacks off it, and it had the general dreary look of age. But it was good wool, and its camel's-hair color is right in this spring's fashion picture.

One enterprising daughter set to work and converted it into the jeep jacket, which she can wear with slacks, separate skirts and jumpers for several seasons. Notable are the four patch pockets, with their effective button-hole slashes. The pockets, incidentally, camouflage a couple of the worst moth-damaged areas.

You can get a cleverly designed pattern for making this jeep jacket out of a bathrobe. A man's robe of small size (33-to-37 chest) will make a size 11 jacket. The 38-to-42 chest medium size makes a size 13 or 15 jacket and the large man's size (42-to-46 chest) will make a size 17 jacket. The pattern gives full instructions for cutting.

War Kitchen

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

For Sunday, use a large fowl. Serve it braised with vegetables for dinner. Use remaining back, wings, neck and giblets in "chicken with rice" for Monday's luncheon.

BRAISED CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLES

(Serves 5)

Cooked breast, thighs, and legs of a 4½ to 5-pound fowl, 5 medium carrots, 5 medium potatoes, 1 bunch celery, 3 tablespoons chicken fat, 2 cups chicken stock, salt and pepper as desired.

Bring chicken stock to boil, add carrots whole, cook 15 minutes, then add potatoes, whole or halved, cook 15 to 20 minutes longer or until carrots and potatoes are just tender. Add celery stalks, cut into 2-inch lengths, during the last 8 minutes of cooking. Drain. Meanwhile, roll chicken in flour, then brown slowly in the chicken fat spooned from the stock. Add cooked vegetables and about ½ cup of vegetable-chicken stock. Simmer a few minutes to blend flavors. Arrange on warm serving platter with vegetables arranged attractively around chicken. Garnish with green celery leaves reserved for that purpose. If desired, serve with gravy made from pan drippings and the remaining stock.

CHICKEN WITH RICE

(Serves 5-6)

Cooked back, wings, neck and giblets of 4½ to 5-pound fowl, 3 tablespoons or more chicken fat, 3 cups chicken stock, 2 cups rice, salt and pepper as needed.

Break up cooked back, wings and neck, removing bones and skin if desired. Chop giblets. Place meat, stock, and fat in saucepan and bring to a boil. Wash rice, drain thoroughly, then add to stock. Add salt and pepper. Bring to a vigorous boil, then reduce heat as low as possible. Cover tightly, cook about 40 minutes or until rice is soft and the stock is absorbed. Remove cover and allow to dry about 10 minutes if drier rice is desired, or turn out immediately into serving dish.

Sunday's Menu

(Eat the basic 7 every day)

Breakfast: Orange juice, cracked wheat cereal, scrambled eggs, with chives, buttered toast, marmalade, coffee, milk.

Dinner: Braised chicken with vegetables, asparagus with mock Hollandaise sauce, wholewheat rolls, butter or fortified margarine, raw carrot sticks, celery and radishes, cottage pudding with fresh strawberry sauce, tea, milk.

Supper: Chicken and tomato soup in cups, vegetable salad, toasted cheese sandwiches, stewed fruit, cookies, tea, milk.

ONE HORSE-POWER
IS NOT THE POWER OF ONE HORSE

The standardized power of a horse is two-thirds of one horsepower. This was arrived at by Watt and Boulton when they tried to indicate the power of their steam engines. They discovered that strong work-horses in London could lift 22,000 pounds one foot per minute during the day. This made 22,000 foot pounds. They then added 50 per cent to this for good measure, and established one horse-power as 33,000 foot-pounds per minute, which is now the standard of horsepower energy. Horses, under stress can, however, develop about 12 horsepower per minute.

Superfluity Shop Profits Show Gain

The Red Cross Superfluity Shop has now passed the $12,500 mark it has been announced, and the committee expresses appreciation to "those who brought, and those who bought."

A featured article in the shop this week is a French couch cover with velvet pile and Oriental pattern. Workers at the shop suggest that it be used for a chesterfield cover or a bed-sitting room couch.

Perennial plants, in demand each year, are needed again, and the committee asks that hollyhocks, forget-me-nots, delphinium, and similar plants be donated.

Points For Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

This

Not This

Daughter: "Mother, what does this mean—what it says here about the trial of this movie star?"

Mother: "Sit down here, daughter, and I'll explain it to you the best that I can."

Jean: "I asked my mother but she wouldn't tell me."

Alice: "My mother wouldn't either. She said I was too young to know but I think it means that those girls . . . etc., etc."

A parent's refusal to answer questions increases rather than decreases a child's curiosity and forces him to turn to other children whose misinformation is probably as great as his own.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

Bridge in its American form has invaded North Africa, along with the American Army, according to a letter received recently from Corp. Harry Brody, who before his induction into the armed forces less than a year ago was a New York lawyer. Corporal Brody, writing from Casablanca, reports that he has organized a team-of-four, the other members of which include an American soldier and two Belgians, presumably civilians.

The team has had a number of matches with another team, equally international in character, consisting of one Frenchman, one Belgian, one Dutchman and one American. Under the regulations, the bidding is in French and Corporal Brody says he finds it one of the best ways to improve his knowledge of the language.

Today's hand was enclosed with the letter, with Corporal Brody (South) the declarer. With the diamond lead he had no trouble at all in making his contract with an overtrick. At the other table, where Corporal Brody's teammates were defenders, North became the declarer at three no trump and received a heart opening. West won with the king and a heart was returned. Time thus ran against the declarer, and North could not prevent East from winning the setting trick, the defenders taking three hearts, one club and one diamond.

"Just as in war," the corporal adds, "it's a good thing to choose the battleground, and to control as much as possible where the opening shot is fired."

Minute Make-Ups

"Into the fires of spring your winter cosmetics fling" — Apologies to Omar Khayyam. Invest in a fresh new group of makeup accessories. A bottle of spring-flower fragrance. A new shade of lipstick. A new face powder. It's time to be your gayest, prettiest self! And your skin needs lighter, fresher cosmetics.

What To Do

I am moving to a strange city with my husband. Have you any suggestions about how to get acquainted?

Answer—If your husband is in the army or navy you will have no trouble getting acquainted as his fellow officers' wives will take you under their wing, and see that you meet people.

However, a civilian encounters more trouble. My best advice is—go slow. Don't pick up chance acquaintances. Your church is a good way to meet people, and your husband's business associates may prove to be the "right people."

Don't accept hospitality until you are sure you like the people, because you will be duty-bound to entertain these people once you allow them to entertain you.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mothers are never satisfied with the way their children act in public. They seem never to show off to the best advantage.

Either the child scorns the guests and won't give them even a glance, or else he or she wants to be the "whole cheese" and gallop in front of the strangers, capturing their eyes to the exclusion of all else.

Both parents and guests should ask themselves reasonably what can be expected of children. If honest, they will admit that they may be flustered in the presence of strangers and say and do things they deplore later in their calmer moments.

Take it for granted that a child especially one newly conscious of himself as a person, isn't going to enjoy being looked at, questioned or made to show off. If he is timid, he won't overcome his timidity because of the increased demands being made upon him to be a nice boy, or mannerly.

In fact, if forced to do so, he will exhibit his disagreeable personality aspects, as a matter of course. He'll want to be left alone and if he isn't he'll act up to his parent's dismay.

The natural born exhibitionist, who can't be happy unless someone is observing and admiring him, may be even harder for the parent or guests to bear. A little of that behaviour goes a long way with everyone. A guest's smile gets pretty stiff when she is constantly prodded to, "Look at me, Mrs. Frank, look what I'm doing."

All the children, the timid as well as the aggressively smarty one, have to be shown ways in which to make themselves useful and pleasing instead of boresome.

Let the mother set out in advance the tasks to be expected of the children. There are so many ways in which even children can make guests comfortable and aware of their existence, without there being that unnatural, artificial effort to put themselves forward. With the child actively engaged in doing something, instead of only in efforts to be noticed, he will be content in short order to go his way having won the praise and admiration of a grateful guest.

Guests should make up their minds not to be critical of either show-off or timid children. Keep the child's social limitations in mind. As for the parent, she may as well be aware that no one outside of the family will ever thoroughly appreciate the cuteness or smartness of her children. With the expectations of both parties well within the bounds of possibility the guests won't be horrified or the parents humiliated by the child's natural behavior. They can both laugh it off with: "Well what can one expect of children?"

The answer is: Nothing.

Our leaflet, "The Timid Child," may be had by sending a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Though whipping cream is just a pleasant memory, your desserts needn't lack decorative toppings. Here's an excellent substitute: Whip two egg whites until stiff, beat in a quarter-cup powdered sugar, then add alternately a cup of grated apple and another quarter-cup powdered sugar, beating mixture all the while. Flavor with a teaspoon fresh lemon juice.

In Memoriam 7

IN loving memory of our daughter Barbara Ann Bunting, who passed away May 7th, 1942.

We think of her, we loved her so dearly,
For memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincere,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

See Significance In Appointment Of U.S. General

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—Designation of an armored force expert to succeed a flying general as commander of United States troops in the European theatre was regarded by unofficial observers here yesterday as an indication that the aerial softening process was developing satisfactorily and that the emphasis was shifting toward the day of land operations on the continent.

Lt.-Gen. Jacob L. Devers, armored force expert, was named by War Secretary Stimson to succeed Lt. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, killed on Monday in a plane crash in Iceland.

Ottawa Backs Reserve Army Camp Decision

OTTAWA, May 7.—(CP)—Decision of commanding officers of reserve army units at Edmonton to make attendance at summer camp compulsory for all unit members was described Thursday by defence headquarters spokesmen as a "purely local" situation.

These spokesmen said that it is the general policy for commanding officers to divide their unit membership into two categories for camp purposes: those who cannot be spared and must attend; and those who may be granted exemption.

There has been no change in this policy, it was said, and commanding officers continue to have discretionary power.

Decision of commanding officers of Edmonton Reserve Army units, that attendance at this year's annual summer training camp is compulsory, has been upheld by the department of national defence at Ottawa, and therefore, members must attend unless they obtain exemption.

The commanding officers of Reserve Army units announced Thursday that attendance at summer camp would be compulsory, this action being taken under discretionary power vested in them under the Militia Act. The Ottawa authority states that the officers retain that discretionary power, and therefore the decision that summer camp is a compulsory parade holds good.

To Repel Invasion

Nazis Intensifying Work On Norway Fortifications

STOCKHOLM, May 7.—(AP)—The Germans are intensifying work on Norwegian fortifications following a conference in Narvik at which the possibilities of invasion were discussed by Norwegian Quisling leaders and heads of the German army, navy and police, reliable reports from inside Norway said today.

These reports said that orders have been given by the Norwegian underground organization to prepare for open revolt and that more snarls had developed in the total labor mobilization campaign.

In the province of Jaeren on the southwest coast of Norway between Stavanger and Kristiansand, the Germans have begun digging a giant anti-tank ditch, it was reported. Extension of the railroad line north of Mosjoen in northern Norway also is being rushed and work is being hurried on an airfield at Orlandet off Trondheim Fjord and a submarine station at Trondheim, it was said.

SAY FLEET MOVED

Unconfirmed reports here said units of the German fleet had moved from Trondheim to the area of Tromsoe, north of Narvik. While such a shift would put the fleet in a better position for action against any Murmansk-bound Allied convoy during the long summer days, reports of the move came following an increase in R.A.F. activity along the Norwegian coast.

Loyal Norwegians said a full-scale revolt would come when Norwegian officials gave the signal to co-operate with Allied summer offensive plans.

Russia Charges Polish Officials With Espionage

By M. S. HANDLER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

MOSCOW, May 7.—(Deputy Foreign Commissar Andrei J. Vishinsky charged today that Polish diplomats and high-ranking army officers had been guilty of espionage against the Soviet Union.

Many have been tried and punished or expelled from Russia, Vishinsky told Anglo-American newspaper correspondents at a press conference. Among those expelled, he said, was Gen. Romuald Wolikowski, former head of the Polish military mission to Russia and one who played an "important part in . . . espionage work in the U.S.S.R."

SAYS PACT VIOLATED

Vishinsky's statement came only 24 hours after publication of a letter from Premier Josef Stalin had raised hopes that the break in relations between the two governments could be mended soon. Stalin said Russia desired a strong and independent Poland after the war.

The Polish government in exile refused to permit a Polish army to fight Germany on the Russian front, Vishinsky said, violating article 7 of the Polish-Russian friendship pact of July 30, 1941, signed soon after the Nazis invaded Russia.

Under this article, a Polish army was to be organized on Soviet soil from Polish prisoners seized when the Red Army occupied the eastern part of Poland coincidental with the German invasion of western Poland in 1939. The army was duly organized but has never fought.

The agreement, he said, set the Polish army at 30,000 men and the Soviet government loaned the Poles 300,000,000 rubles to provide for the force, a division of which was to have been sent to the front but never was. Later inquiries drew promises that were unfulfilled, he added. The actual Polish force was said to total 41,681 men.

UP TO GOVERNMENT

Vishinsky bluntly told the newspaper correspondent that Soviet Polish relations depended on the circumstances of the moment and added:

"It's up to the Polish government to think about the steps to be taken. The Polish government is responsible for the rupture and therefore it is up to the Polish government to take the necessary concrete steps."

He said it was too early to discuss under what conditions relations might be resumed with the present or re-constructed government under Polish Premier Wladislaw Sikorski.

At the same time, he spiked reports that the Soviet government might be planning to form another Polish government on Soviet territory as "pure invention."

While the Polish government has refused to live up to certain sections of the 1941 friendship pact and other agreements, he said, the rupture in Soviet-Polish relations and other events have not invalidated the agreements in themselves.

GUILTY ARE TRIED

He charged that members of the Polish embassy staff and high army officers had used the Polish relief centres in Russia to carry out espionage against the Soviet Union.

"A number of Polish representatives and their collaborators and trusted men, instead of honestly fulfilling their duties, chose the road of reconnaissance activity hostile towards the U.S.S.R.," he said.

"The guilty were handed over to courts. Among the people engaged in this hostile and criminal activity towards the U.S.S.R. were a number of diplomatic collaborators of the Polish embassy, who sponsored, organized and led this criminal activity."

Vishinsky charged that the "Polish radio" continued to spread "malicious reports on the question of Polish-Soviet reltaions."

The conference originally had been called by Vishinsky for late afternoon, but was postponed until 10 p.m. and began finally at 11:30 p.m.

Nile P. Asselstine, Railwayman, Dies

An employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the past 20 years, Nile P. Asselstine, 11507 96 street, died in a city hospital Thursday. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Asselstine, who was a checker, was born in eastern Canada but came west to Edmonton 37 years ago.

Surviving him are his wife, one son, Stanley Howard, at home and three daughters, Marjorie, on active service, and Berenice and Blanche both at home. Three sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Stidger of Portland, Ore.; Mrs. A. Riemer of Dewberry; Mrs. Wm. McRae of McRae; and three brothers, Edwin and William of St. Lina and Milford of Auckland, New Zealand, also survive.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 4 p.m. in the chapel of Park Memorial. Officiating will be the Rev. Wm. Young. Burial will be made in Beechmount Cemetery.

Air Base Chief Is Held in Shooting

SELFRIDGE FIELD, Mich., May 7—(AP)—The early morning shooting of a negro private at this army air base was followed yesterday by a change in command of the post and by the detention of the former commanding officer in an army hospital at Battle Creek, Mich., for "observation by medical corps personnel."

The 24-year-old victim of the shooting, Pte. William McRae, whose parents' address is Morven, N.C., was reported in "fair" condition at the base hospital here.

Only details disclosed were contained in a statement issued by Capt. Richard Ramey, public relations officer. It said:

"The commanding officer at Selfridge Field today announced that Pte. William McRae, negro soldier serving as a motor vehicle driver for the base garage at Selfridge Field, was wounded at approximately 1 a.m. Wednesday as the result of a shot allegedly fired by Col. William T. Colman, then the base commander of Selfridge Field. The revolver was said to have been fired near the front steps of base headquarters."

Stettin Centre "Virtually Gone" After Big Raid

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—Quoting eye-witness accounts of the heavy R.A.F. raid on Stettin April 20, Reuters News Agency said yesterday the centre of the city has virtually disappeared.

Reuters' report came through a neutral country and one witness was quoted as saying: "There seems no doubt that Stettin would have been totally destroyed if there had been any wind the night of the raid or the two days following."

During the attack, the account continued, authorities appealed to Berlin for extra fire brigades, only to be refused.

Soviet Planes Hit Nazi Rail Centres

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—The Soviet Radio announced last night that large formations of Russian bombers successfully attacked German-held railway junctions at Dnieperopetrovsk, Kremenchug and Bryansk Wednesday night, hitting enemy trains filled with ammunition and arms.

The stations in all the cities were said to have been "crammed" with trains, and it was added that fires and heavy explosions were set off.

The broadcast was recorded here by the Soviet Monitor.

Thailand, formerly Siam, is also Pradeş-Thai or Muang-Thai.

ROCKETS! YOU HEAR?? THE NAZIS WILL THROW THEM AT US AS PROJECTILES... TORPEDOES PLANES! ROBOT CONTROLLED ROCKETS...AND WHERE WILL WE BE WITH ME, THE COUNTRY'S ONLY ROCKET EXPERT IN JAIL?
BUT MY STARS, OSCAR, WHAT CAN I DO ABOUT IT?
AHH! NOW YOU'RE BEGINNING TO SHOW SOME SENSE! LISTEN
A ROCKET'S ONE WEAKNESS IS A BARREL METAL THAT'LL STAND UP UNDER THE HEAT OF THE PROPULSION BLAST... I KNOW THE ANSWER, BUT YOU HOLD THE KEY!
ME?? THAT'S ABSURD! I KNOW VERY LITTLE ABOUT METALS...
...BUT I DO KNOW THAT EVERY TIME I GET MIXED UP WITH YOU, I WIND UP BEHIND THE EIGHT BALL!

Winnipeg Wheat Trading Is Quiet

WINNIPEG, May 7—(CP)—Wheat trade was quiet on Winnipeg grain exchange today with prices showing an easier tone. The May future closed ⅜ cent lower at 98⅞ cents a bushel, July ⅝-⅝ lower at 99¾-⅞ and the October ½ lower at $1.00½.

A moderate export business in Canadian wheat was reported with around 300,000 bushels going to the United Kingdom and 100,000 bushels selling to Eire.

Cash wheat trade was limited to carlot quantities of the lower grades for rail movement to Eastern Canada. American buyers were in the market for cash oats and barley but trade was restricted.

Trade in barley futures was fairly brisk but prices dropped from ceiling levels as buying orders proved insufficient to absorb liberal offerings. Trade in rye was mixed and routine.

Grain inspections at Winnipeg yesterday totalled 373 cars compared with 809 cars a year ago. Country marketings amounted to 502,000 bushels against 235,000 last year.

ALBERTA AIRMAN BAGS TWO NAZIS IN AFRICA FIGHT

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, May 7.—(CP)—Of nine enemy aircraft shot down Thursday by the R.A.F., three were bagged by Canadian airmen.

Pilot Officer George Keith of Taber, Alta., got two Messerschmitts. Then, with his ammunition exhausted, he was chased over Tunis by a large number of Messerschmitts but got home safely with his only damage a hole in the wing.

Eskimos of Reid Island in Arctic Buying War Bonds

WINNIPEG, May 7—(CP)—Eskimos of Reid Island, in the Arctic, beyond the northern mainland of Canada, are showing their patriotism by buying Victory bonds.

Thirteen Eskimo hunters and trappers on the island placed their order for bonds with William Joss, manager of the Hudson's Bay company post there. Joss and three other white men at the post also bought $1,400 worth of bonds.

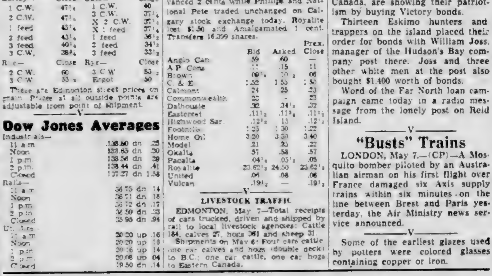
Word of the Far North loan campaign came today in a radio message from the lonely post on Reid Island.

"Busts" Trains

LONDON, May 7.—(CP)—A Mosquito bomber piloted by an Australian airman on his first flight over France damaged six Axis supply trains within six minutes on the line between Brest and Paris yesterday, the Air Ministry news service announced.

Some of the earliest glazes used by potters were colored glasses containing copper or iron.

Navy League Aids Merchant Seamen



The tremendous growth of The Navy League of Canada in the past five years, and especially since the outbreak of war, is evidenced by the 20 buildings which it now operates on behalf of Merchant Seamen, Naval Officers and ratings and also for soldiers and airmen and the women of the three services. Four buildings are shown in the above picture. From left to right they are (upper) the new Navy League Seamen's Club at Vancouver, the Forum skating rink at Halifax and (lower) the League's Merchant Officers' Club and Naval Officers' Club, also at Halifax. The Forum was opened last December and is used by the men of all three services. Between them they had nearly 100 hockey teams during the winter and it was not unusual to see 7,500 men and women of the active forces lustily cheering at the evening hockey games. Skating periods were provided for all servicemen and women and their families were not overlooked. The Vancouver and Halifax Clubs were opened within a few days of each other early this year. Those at Halifax are in addition to the Navy League Merchant Seamen's Club which has been in operation since December, 1941. Until recently, there was no provision for officers of the Merchant Navy or Navy at Halifax, but this need is now being met. These developments, and the fulfillment of other heavy responsibilities, have taken place under the guidance of David H. Gibson, President of the Navy League of Canada.

Police Force Is Advocated European Area and brought sorrow to thousands, they have created in the British people a very great determination to fight on until Hitler and his associates have been brought to unconditional surrender.

He said that two out of every third person in Britain was engaged in war work, and in addition countless thousands of workers in civilian jobs were engaged in their spare time, as air raid wardens, roof spotters and home guard duties.

Mr. Bartlett recalled the rejoicing and boasting that appeared in the German press during the blitz on London in 1940. Then the papers of Germany rejoiced that the British barbarian would be bombed from the face of the earth.

It is a different story today and the Hun gets some of his own medicine, he added.

But it is comforting that the only reply that the German air force can give to the heavy raids by British bombers is the hit and run raids of two or three machines. These raids have no military value, he added, and it would indicate that the Germans are being very hard pressed at present.

From the air raid shelters of Britain Mr. Bartlett said, a very different British people has been born. There has been a great levelling of the peoples of the British Isles, and snobishness has been blown up by the German bombs.

TELLS OF COURAGE

He pictured the glorious courage and good humor of the British people under the hammerings of the German air assaults. One of the most common sounds in the early morning after raids was the tinkle of glass as shopkeepers and home owners swept glass fragments from their windows into the street before starting to their work.

Another inspiring sight, he said, was the joking, jesting crowds that came from the shelters each morning to go to their work.

"These, to me, were just as inspiring as the handful of airmen who won the Battle of Britain," Mr. Bartlett stated.

"I hope you never have the incentive of bombs in this country," Mr. Bartlett stated, "but your war effort is a great tribute to your people and to the fundamental ideals on which Canada and the other nations of the Allies are founded."

He told the audience of the men of Dunkirk who marched through the streets of Aldershot as if on parade, and fell on bunks in the barracks so dog tired that they slept through while helpers cut their boots and socks from blood-soaked feet.

"It was the 'little man' that saved Britain in the black days before and after Dunkirk," Mr. Bartlett stated, as he asked his audience "how long before these little men will get their reward?"

SEES TUNISIA FALL

He said that within the next few days, in his opinion, Tunisia will fall. Then a remarkable change will take place in the whole war picture. The Germans will defend their remaining territory in North Africa bitterly. Every delay achieved is a postponement of the invasion of the European continent, but the more we think of Tunisia the more cheerful we can be concerning the future course of the war.

Shipping is the major factor in an invasion of the continent, he added, and the sea routes for supplies to the middle east must be shortened by gaining complete control of the Mediterranean.

Mussolini has lost his influence over the Italian people, Mr. Bartlett stated, and expressed the opinion that Italy would "go out of the war if she could." But that is not an easy decision as she has to choose between the bombing of the British and American airplanes and the brutal bombing she would be subjected to by Germany for her desertion.

He said that a great step could be made by a landing in Italy. It would not be hard to induce the Italian people to lay down their arms if the invasion were started, and that would be followed by the desertion of the German armies by the divisions of Italians now fighting on other fronts in Russia, and guarding the coast lines of conquered countries.

SHORTEN AIR RANGE

A foothold in Italy would place the Allied planes within 120 miles of Munich and other centres to which Hitler has moved German munition plants.

Knocking Italy out of the war with the resulting loss to Hitler of the 30 divisions of Italians now fighting with the Germans would be a bitter blow to the Nazi War lord. He would be unable to police the conquered countries or mount strong guards on the coast lines.

Speaking on the morale of the German people Mr. Bartlett said that it must be getting low. The soldiers were told by Hitler they would not have to fight a second winter campaign in Russia. They have fought that second winter, and are facing a third, and Hitler has not succeeded in getting to the oil resources of the Caucasus, and his armies there are threatened with extinction.

Millions of Germans really believe in the infallibility of Hitler. The Allies had a lucky stroke when he assumed supreme command in Eastern Europe. The reverses suffered by the German army there must prove to the German people that Hitler is not an inspired leader, and although [illegible] there would be a crumbling of morale.

SEES NO REVOLT

Mr. Bartlett did not see any hope of a revolt on the part of the German people, [illegible] a sudden collapse. The Gestapo would take care there was no revolt, and fear of the reprisals that will be taken by the peoples' of the conquered nations will make the German people fight bitterly even after hope of victory has faded.

He said the responsibility for world order after the war would rest with the United Nations, especially Britain, the United States and Canada. Following the collapse of Germany there will be a wave of wholesale murder in Europe as victims of the Gestapo seek their revenge. There will be starvation and disease, and the nations must be ready to meet these situations.

Britain, the United States and Canada must have a strong policy to direct the European countries in the way they should go in the post-war period.

The peoples of these countries must be prepared to send food, livestock, seeds, machinery and other necessities to the peoples of Europe to enable them to re-establish themselves.

"We must be prepared to assist them in the reconstruction period, and we must be prepared also to assist the impoverished regions of Europe to become industrialized so that Germany can never again dominate them industrially," Mr. Bartlett stated.

INTERNATIONAL POLICE

There must be established an International police force that will maintain order throughout Europe. This force must be mobile and effective, capable of keeping down civil wars and revolutions.

"The peoples of the democracies have to make up their minds that we will have a different world in the post-war period. Surely we have reached the stage when we can break down the barriers between the power to produce and to consume," he stated.

"A recent poll in Britain," he said, "on the question of the continuing of rationing in that country after the war to enable the feeding of the peoples of Europe resulted in a vote of 85 per cent for the continuing of the system while there was a hungry person in Europe."

This is an indication that the people of Britain are prepared to make sacrifices that they are going to make democracy work, but it will work only if we live up to the obligations it imposes upon us."

Australia's state of Victoria has two meat hydration plants with a capacity of 200,000 sheep a year in this system of processing.

Doing His Bit

Here is an Edmontonian who is "doing his bit" in Canada's war effort. He is Jack Rippert, 73 years old, who came from retirement to take over the janitorship of the Edmonton Paint and Glass Co. building when manpower became acute. He is seen here working in his "Victory garden." Thursday he went to Victory Loan headquarters to invest $100 in the Fourth Victory Loan. He accumulated the funds, he told loan headquarter's officials, from his Christmas bonus, and by selling odds-and-ends of furniture and other possessions.

War News Summary

FRIDAY, MAY 7

Tunisia: Dispatches from Africa today said Britain's 1st Army is within 14 miles of the Tunis city hall and American troops are within nine miles of the Bizerte naval base.

The backbone of Axis defences was apparently buckling and there was every indication that the long and bitter campaign was entering its final stage.

Russia: Soviet dispatches reported today that the Red armies had driven a wedge between Axis forces north and south of the Kuban River, killed nearly 10,000 Germans and crushed five Nazi counter-attacks on the approaches to Novorossisk, Black Sea naval base. One report said the Russians were five miles from Novorossisk.

Pacific: Allied headquarters announced that Allied troops had captured the village of Bobdubi, five miles from the big Japanese base at Salamaua, New Guinea, while Allied planes roared 20 times over the nearby area pouring cannon and machine-gun fire into enemy troops.

Burma: British headquarters reported a Japanese thrust to the Maungdaw-Buthedaung road, north of the enemy base at Akyab; and said close fighting was in progress.

the units to be affected by their plans.

The number of administrative overhead personnel must be reduced to the point where it becomes physically impossible for them to accomplish all the mass of detail required of them.

All types of paper used by every headquarters should be rationed.

Except in action, personal or telephone interviews should be arranged. As soon as they get in the army many men want to write letters to the man in the next office.

Staff officers should study each document and reflect: Is it necessary to pass this on to subordinate units? If it is cut it in half.

The story of two young officers arriving in Australia after the Battle of Java is related. Hearing a convoy was unloading at Melbourne they wanted volunteers to help throw all typewriters into the bay before they could be landed.

The Time writer observes that luckily for the officers, but perhaps unluckily for fighting proficiency, there were no volunteers.

Major General Levin Campbell, chief of the ordnance department, is apparently a man after Col. Gillete's own heart. He triumphantly quotes a recent general order of Gen. Campbell to his officers:

"Whenever a member of the ordnance department, regardless of rank, encounters red tape in conducting our business, throw the red tape out the nearest window! If an abundance of paper work is involved, deliver first and fill out the forms when the war is over."

Visits City

R. C. Vaughan, Montreal, president of the Canadian National Railways, who stopped over in Edmonton Friday on his way to eastern Canada after a visit to the Pacific coast.

Large Volume Wheat Moving To East Points

Considerable wheat is moving east from Port Arthur to the Eastern United States, according to R. C. Vaughan, Montreal, president of the Canadian National Railways, who arrived here Friday for a one-day visit.

During his stay-over he visited Mayor John W. Fry and the city commissioners, and conferred with executives of business concerns and the heads of United States contracting firms, and armed services.

He made an inspection of C.N.R. services and operations here, and conferred with J. A. Rogers, general superintendent of the Alberta division and other C.N.R. officials.

Undoubtedly the wheat movement from Port Arthur would be reflected in the prairie provinces as a grain movement from district elevators would permit the delivery of farm-stored wheat.

NO DIFFICULTY

He said there would be no difficulty experienced in the movement of prairie grain this spring and fall, and added that a substantial addition to the system's rolling stock, locomotives, freight cars and passenger coaches would be made during the year.

He expressed concern about the amount of coal the system was able to obtain from Alberta's mines. "Usually we depend on this supply for operation as far east as Port Arthur, but now it has become necessary to ship American coal to points close to the Alberta border," he said.

Labor shortages and increased demands from industry were reasons for the coal situation in Alberta.

Commenting on business conditions through Western Canada he said that the Pacific coast was extremely busy, with the greatest activity centred round the ship building yards and airplane construction factories.

Edmonton was one of the busiest and most rapidly expanding cities on the prairies.

Plan Continue Agreement on Manpower Pact

Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture, reported Friday that consideration is being given to terms of a Dominion-provincial farm labor agreement for 1943-44. The agreement is to be a continuation of the one entered into by the department last fall, with the Dominion department of labor.

The last agreement covered recruiting, transporting and placing of farm laborers on farms, and under the new terms, provision is made for more efficient organization of manpower already engaged in agriculture. Further provision will be made for recruiting, transporting and placing on farms men and women suitable for farm work.

The district agriculturist service will help with the recruiting and placing of men on farms, and because of the extra work involved, a number of field men have been appointed.

Transportation of workers from their homes, to places of employment is another feature of the new agreement. All expenses incurred under it are shared jointly by the province and Dominion.

Man's Body Found In Burned Stack

A man's body, burned beyond recognition, was found Thursday afternoon on the Maitland farm, six miles south-west of South Edmonton, Royal Canadian Mounted Police stated today.

According to the police report, Mr. Maitland had been hauling out unthreshable bundles of oats last Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday the bundles were fired, and the next day Mr. Maitland discovered the body and called police.

Both Mr. Maitland and his hired man reported to the police they had seen an old man walking toward the farm. They described him as about 70 years old and walking with a stick.

After examination by Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, the body was taken to Hainstock's funeral home. Identity so far has not been made. Found with the body was a steel truss and an eyeglass case.

Victory Loan Is "Going Over" In Rural Areas

The district of Waskatenau-Radway still continues to lead all rural districts in Alberta in quota-total sales with 118.7 per cent of the $40,000 objective in the Fourth Victory Loan achieved, it was announced Friday by loan headquarters here. Sales in the district up to Thursday night amounted to $47,500.

In second place in Northern Alberta, and possibly in third place in the province, comes the Edgerton-Chauvin district with a quota sale of 109 per cent, having sold $38,050 of a $35,000 quota.

Hughenden district stepped into third place in Northern Alberta at the close of business on Thursday evening with sales totalling $28,800 of a $33,000 quota, the equivalent of 87.3 per cent.

Coming from far down the list Jasper went into fourth place in the quota-sales list Thursday with sales amounting to $65,250 reported for 87 per cent of the $75,000 quota set for the district.

Twenty-nine of Northern Alberta's districts have passed the 50 per cent mark toward their quota, and 48 of them have passed the 40 per cent milestone.

Total sales in rural Northern Alberta in this loan amount to $2,087,000. This is 52.6 per cent of the $3,964,000 quota set. The sales are $1,096,550 in excess of those in the Third Victory Loan campaign, while the number of subscribers is 4,552 ahead of the total of investors in the last loan.

The standing of North Alberta rural units as at close of business May 6 was:

Before The Magistrate

George F. Williams will be sentenced next Friday on charges of assault, causing actual bodily harm and of resisting a peace officer, attempting to arrest him. Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., will pass sentence on Williams next week, following pleas of guilty to the two charges in police court Friday morning.

Accused is said to have displayed marked pugilistic prowess with Constable W. Wilchinski and Detective J. McMurray when the pair sought to arrest him at his home on a charge of beating his wife.

10 P.M. Curfew During Summer Recommended

City council's bylaws committee Thursday decided to recommend to the parent body that the city's curfew hours from May 1 to October 31 be 10 p.m., instead of 8 p.m., and that the 8 p.m. time be in effect for the period November 1 to April 30.

The change in the curfew hours was recommended by Chief of Police Matthew Blackwood to endeavor to curb annoyances caused by young boys throughout the city.

PROSECUTE PARENTS

Under the terms of the bylaws, habitual disregard of its provisions, following a warning from the police to the children's parents, will result in prosecution of the parents.

"It will be a case of the sins of the children being visited on the parents," said Ald. James H. Ogilvie.

There was little discussion on the bylaw amendment to change the curfew hours. Ald. Ogilvie wanted April included in the longer hour period, but Chief of Police Blackwood was of the opinion that his recommendation should be accepted.

The committee decided also to recommend that a $5 license fee be charged for "juke boxes" operating in city business places. This license fee would apply to 1944, it was stated.

$25 IN CALGARY

During the discussion it was stated that "automats" used solely for rendering music, in cabaret or dance hall, paid a license fee of $25 in Calgary. In other business places in the city the license fee was $2.

In Regina the license fee for music machines in dance halls was $100, and in all other cases $10. The music vending machine license in Vancouver for the first machine was $25, and $2 for each additional machine, while in Winnipeg there was a license fee of $5 for each machine regardless of location.

Thomas McCallum, city license inspector, suggested that the license fee for these instruments in places wtih a seating capacity of less than 20 persons should be $10, with a seating capacity of 20 to 40, $20, and more than 40, $25. The committee members were of the opinion that too much inspection work would have to be carried out to make this plan workable.

Aldermen Ogilvie and F. J. Mitchell were delegated to draft resolutions for presentation to the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities convention to be held at Ottawa on May 26 to 28 inclusive.

Ald. Ogilvie's resolution will seek the calling of a dominion-provincial convention by the dominion government in an effort to implement the recommendations of the Rowell-Sirois Report.

Canada's fuel situation will be the subject of the resolution to be drafted by Ald. Mitchell. Both resolutions will be submitted to city council at its meeting on Monday next for endorsation.

Clayton Adams Quits Position On Labor Board

Resignation of Clayton Adams as chief executive officer of the Alberta Regional War Labor Board was announced Friday by Hon. E. C. Manning, chairman of the board. Mr. Adams had been chief executive officer of the board since its inception.

Mr. Adams, also chairman of the board of industrial relations, will carry on in that capacity. "Mr. Adams' resignation was rendered necessary by the increasing activity and expansion of industries in Alberta which makes it imperative that he devote his full time to duties of chairman of the board of industrial relations," Mr. Manning said in making the announcement.

"It is felt that by so doing, it will be possible for the board of industrial relations to devote much more attention to the interests of labor in this province, and that, by promoting more harmonious relations, industry in general will benefit.

"Furthermore, the clerical work of the regional war labor board has increased to such a degree that it requires the attention of a chief executive officer on a full-time basis, and we have recommended this to Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Dominion minister of labor," Mr. Manning added.

Mr. Mitchell has been asked to appoint another chief executive officer to replace Mr. Adams, but as yet, there has been no word from Ottawa regarding the new appointment.

Advocate West Best Location Of New Plants

With the science of chemurgy becoming of increasing importance, an agricultural research committee of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce will urge the Dominion government that any plants required for development of new materials from agricultural products be established in Western Canada.

At a meeting held in the chamber offices Thursday, under the chairmanship of R. J. Wiggins, and attended by Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, the following suggestions were made:

That any developments for the use of agricultural products for commercial purposes should take place in Western Canada by reason of the availability of materials to be treated, and also of water, power and fuel.

That financial assistance for the development of research in the use of agricultural products for commercial purposes be not only maintained but extended and that every opportunity be given for research into at present unexplored possibilities.

TRAINED PERSONS

That every effort be made to insure that sufficient numbers of adequately trained persons be made available for such research products.

Mr. MacKinnon expressed approval of the interest being taken by committee members in this highly important new scientific development. He said he would see that the suggestions made by the commitee were brought to the attention of the government. He personally promised his careful consideration.

Claims Democracy Not Full Answer

Democracy is not the answer to the world's ills for it has led into one war after another, stated the Rev. Harvey W. Linnen, Toronto, in an address given at the Parish hall of All Saints' Wednesday evening. Mr. Linnen spoke on "Theocracy the Coming World Government."

The change from a democrtaic government to a theocratic one will be gradual, said Mr. Linnen, stating that theocracy means good government under God.

"The Christ we have had presented to us does not find favor with us. He has been presented as a weakling but he will return as a shining, powerful Christ and the government will rest upon his shoulders," Mr. Linnen said.

Really Christ was not a weakling but a strong man of physical grandeno—a God among men, who drew his listeners attention to the Biblical prohphecy of Christ "If I am lifted up I will draw all men unto me," he said.

The church had drawn the theory of Christianity and not the practice and had pointed to a heaven beyond the clouds instead of heaven on earth.

The city camps' plan is drawn up with the object of meeting the problem of the lengthened school holiday period this summer.

MEET MAY 29

There will be a meeting on May 29 of representative citizens living in sections of the city where it is planned to set up the camps. In addition to parents of children it is planned to have school principals and clergymen attend the meeting.

DARK JUNGLES

By JOHN C. FLEMING AND LOIS EBY

CHAPTER XXI

BUSY days stretched ahead for everyone at the estancia. From every direction in the jungle chicleros brought their canvas bags of fresh latex to the clearing.

Steam rose all day and far into the evening from the huge copper kettles.

Renaldo was in half a dozen places at once, seeing that the fires were kept banked, the latex poured into the cooking vats, and, when boiled to a thick mass, poured into the cooling molds. There was the weighing to be done, the paying off of each chiclero, the mules and men to be fed and bedded, and constant protection of the drenching rains.

Barry had taken over the task of stamping each brick of cooling chicle with the trademark of the plantation. It was a small but important routine which Renaldo did not like to leave to natives and it eased Barry's impatience somewhat. Each of Renaldo's tasks accomplished brought the next visit to Moncha Suma nearer.

Allison was almost as busy as Renaldo. Like him she began to get up at dawn in order to do her heaviest work before the intense noonday heat set in. The fame of her zoot caps had spread like wild fire among the horde of chicleros, and she was besieged with calls for more.

She had stitched the first caps painstakingly by hand, but with the sudden demand, this method would not suffice. She came hurrying across the clearing one suffocatingly hot morning to the verandah where Lila and Barry were having breakfast. Barry leaped up to pull up a chair for her.

"Take it easy, zoot queen," he begged. "You'll melt on one of those rushing trips of yours and someone will scoop you up for latex."

Allison laughed gaily, pushing back an unruly sunburned lock of hair off her tanned face with the back of her hand.

"The precious joke of it all is," she confided, "that my zoot caps aren't invulnerable and the Indians know it. But it's got about through the tribe that I'm lucky for them. And everything I give them is a lucky piece. So I'm stuck with about 40 more zoot caps to make."

Lila took a sip of her iced coffee. "You have complicated your life," she said serenely.

Allison gave her guest a quick sharp glance. Lila was in exquisitely tailored silk shorts and blouse, cool and immaculate.

Barry braced himself for sparks. But the flinty look softened in Allison's eyes under a sudden warm smile.

"I wish I were clever like you are, Lila," she said wistfully. "I know you'd think of some way out of this."

Lila shot Allison a look of quick suspicion but Barry laughed in relief. "Go ahead, Lila," he urged. "You always were efficiency plus."

Lila shrugged her slender shoulders delicately. "Well," she mused thoughtfully, "pass them flowers or something. Tell them those will be just as lucky for them."

"Oh, but they wouldn't," objected Allison quickly. "The zoot caps are a partial protection. I want the chicleros to have them."

"Well then," Lila thought rapidly, and came up with an inspiration, "have the Indian women sew them."

Allison looked stunned with sudden relief. Then she gave a whoop of joy. "Lila, you're an absolute genius!" She turned to Barry enthusiastically. "She's helping you, too, you know, because the chicleros will work faster when they get their caps. I'll get the material and needles and thread—"

, She darted to the veranda door, then turned back with a pleading look at Lila. "It's going to take a little teaching right at first. You could do it better than I. Would you mind terribly, Lila?"

Lila choken a little on her coffee, but her smile was impassive. "Not at all," she said stiffly.

So Lila was coerced into the plantation activity. The "little teaching" proved more than she had dreamed in her worst suspicions. She found herself going back and forth from the Topping estancia to the Indian huts in the blazing sunshine with fresh supplies of material, sitting with black, chattering Indian women in their old smelling huts, called over to the steaming copper kettles to take a message from Renaldo or Barry or Allison back to the big house.

The days became long, grueling periods of torture. And the bitterest part of it was that she was perfectly helpless. Lila had planned her trip so carefully—a swift descent upon the plantation, a rapid expose of the stupid little flirt who had lured Barry to her estancia, and a return to New York with a convalescent fiance. How differently it had worked out! Barry stubbornly determined to stay here until Renaldo could take him to make peace with the Quiche chief. And her own efficiency turned as a boomerang upon her by the wily Allison. It was insufferable!

For Barry expected miracles from her after her amazing jungle trek. And, so Allison wouldn't expose her duplicity, she was forced to carry on the illusion of being a superwoman.

The sweltering rays of the sun melted her make-up, the small crawling insects in the smelly Indian huts revolted her. She loathed everything about the hot, dirty, isolated country. But pride kept her doing her share in the plantation's strenuous duties, day after dragging day.

She had just finished her round of Indian huts one morning. The heat was heavy—muggy. It was difficult to move. The shouts of the Indians rang in her aching head. The constant stench of food and bodies in the hut had been especially abhorrent. She put on her sun helmet and started back across the clearing to the Topping estancia, walking with proud strides but secretly counting the steps to the darkness and semi-coolness of her room.

She saw the group by the last Indian hut and tried to hurry past, but they saw her. Barry hailed her over.

"Want to go out on a short trek into the jungle and see the prize zapote tree?" he grinned as she turned back.

Renaldo beamed at her. Her being there had relieved him of a deep gnawing fear of Barry as a rival. He was the soul of gallantry to her. Now he added eagerly, "Nearly three kilos flow from its bark before the gashes heal!"

Lila wanted to shriek at them. What did she care if 10,000 kilos flowed from the plagued zapote! She wouldn't go a step into that hellish jungle if she was shot for it. But her face did not give away her thoughts. She alibied sweetly on the score of her work.

Unfortunately for her, Allison came around the corner of the hut in time to hear her. She was carrying a bowl of soup for an emaciated-looking Indian lolling in the shadow of the doorway.

"Nonsense," she called brightly to Barry as she gave the soup to the Indian. "You take her right along. We've got to see she doesn't overwork—like this poor Indian did." Her eyes met Lila's steadily.

A shadow passed over Lila's face. Then she said with slow effort, "All right—I'd love to go."

McCoy Health Service

There is undoubtedly no class of disorder which has so far-reaching an effect upon the nervous system as derangement of the genital organs, whether in man or woman. Unfortunately due to the prevalence of a great deal of false modesty very little is said about these conditions, and the time is almost here when truth and knowledge will dispel ignorance.

The chief derangements of the genital organs in women are frequently caused by a sluggish state of the blood stream through being surchanged with heavy foreign material which is productive of congestion in the womb and overies, and creates an engorged state which interfers with the normal function of these organs.

Prolapsus of the abdominal organs, adhesions and the distention and irritation of intestinal gas may also be included as factors in causing female trouble. Then again there are frequently psychological factors, or physical malformation. Any, or all of these are likely to cause distress and in order for the patient to return to health, these causes must be removed.

The digestive disorders may be corrected by proper attention to the diet, and the prolapsus, or sagging of the abdominal organs, caused by weakened muscles of the abdomen, may be overcome through development of muscular tone by selective exercises. Possibly the most difficult to treat are those suffering from some psychological factor, which is productive of so much harm through interference with the normal expression of life, and the personality of the individual.

Scanty and irregular menstruation is a condition often the result of an anemic state, but it is commonly caused by some form of gastro-intestinal trouble which produces pressure upon the womb and overies, either from gas or from prolapsed organs. Frequently a low blood pressure will exist with this condition, and it will often take several months before normal menstrual flow is again established. When caused by deficiency disease such as tuberculosis, or diabetes, these diseases must be cured and the patient well on the road to complete recovery before the body will have enough strength to re-establish the normal menstruation.

The act of menstruation should take place without any real discomfort and due to habits formed through civilization, woman has formed the habit of passing a quantity of blood every twenty-eight days, and it seems that the health of the average female depends upon the execution of this function. If pain is present and only a small amount of blood is eliminated it is due to some congestion in the womb, or overies, resulting from some of the reasons stated above.

Frequently women who are passing through the change of life suffer from profuse menstruation, and is frequently due to the inability of the blood to clot rapidly enough, due to the absence of certain elements in the blood. Another common cause of profuse menstruation is a laceration or tear caused at child birth, and tumors may also cause this condition.

From the above information it is easy to see that the causes of female derangements are many and varied and only by having a proper examination is the victim able to find out just exactly what the cause of her trouble is. Just remember that this act of menstruation should not be attended by undue pain or discomfort, and if severe symptoms are experienced it is a good plan to have a good examination to determine whether the trouble is functional or organic. The cause may be very inconsequential, and a few rules of living and dieting may be all that are necessary to restore normal action.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.
